British Parliament Session Ends Next Wednesday MacDonald Unable To Tell M.P.'s If Election Date Near

Session of British Parliament Will End October 7 After Several Measures, Including One Against Food Profiteering, Are Passed, But as Yet National Government Has Not Made Election Plans

London, Sept. 30.—Premier MacDonald informed the Commons to-day Parliament would adjourn next Wednesday.

He did not amplify his reply to a question by Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, leader of the Labor Party, as to whether it would be an adjournment or dissolution.

By Wednesday, Mr. MacDonald said, Parliament would have completed the emergency programme laid out by the National Government, when it took office. Both the economy bill, carrying out retrenchments all along the line of government expenditure, and the supplementary budget of Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, would be enacted in the next seven days.

TO CHECK PROFITEERING
The Premier said also that a short measure would be enacted to deal with food profiteers in view of the fact that prices already were beginning to rise in London.

If the government should decide to go to the country the adjournment will be accompanied by dissolution of Parliament and a call for an immediate election, with the polling late in October.

If the House is merely adjourned the government's plan will be to let the country settle down and give the people time to see the effect of the work it has done.

O PLANS YET MADE
Mr. MacDonald's announcement, while it seemed to increase the belief that a general election is impending also showed the government has not yet made any definite election plans.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson, leader of the Labor opposition, had asked for particulars of the government's further programme and when it was proposed ended the session.

The Prime Minister announced the period measures and intimated it was expected to conclude the session next Wednesday, October 7.

"Will the House prorogue or adjourn at Wednesday," asked Mr. Henderson.

"We shall adjourn on Wednesday, according to our expectations," the Prime Minister replied.

Oct. 28 Debated As The British Election Date

London, Sept. 30.—"It means no election," said David Kirkwood, Labor member of the House of Commons for Lamberton, speaking to the Canadian House concerning Premier MacDonald's announcement to-day the Commons would adjourn next Wednesday. This is the interpretation he placed on the Prime Minister's brief statement.

But in direct contrast to this the Association said most of the members of the House had concluded the government had decided to dissolve Parliament next Thursday, October 7, and call a general election October 28 or 29.

MACDONALD TO TALK TO HIS CONSTITUENTS

London, Sept. 30.—Premier MacDonald to-day decided to go to his constituency, the Great Northern line between Danville and Princeton, to put the question of a general election before a meeting of his constituents. The Seaham Labor Party recently has demanded he resign his seat.

P.R. May Take Over G.N. Lines B.C.-Washington Border Region

Associated Press
Vancouver, Wash., Sept. 30.—Notes are persistent here that the Canadian Pacific Railway may take over the Great Northern branch line between Danville and Princeton, on the international boundary in the Okanagan district, and an abandoned line from Kelowna to Osoyoos in the Okanagan country, a distance approximately 100 miles.

It was reported the Canadian Pacific had found that section of the Great Northern a more satisfactory route between Princeton and its western terminus, Vancouver, B.C.

At the present time the Canadian Pacific route is through Penticton, with long steep grades on both the east and west sides of the Cascade mountains. The Great Northern route is more level and shorter.

WHEN A TRAIN RUNS OVER A PLANE

One of the rarest of accidents was that pictured above in which a train and a plane collided near Charlotte, North Carolina. After a stalled motor had forced the plane down on the railroad tracks, a locomotive tore through it. The pilot, J. E. Lohr, of High Point, N.C., was critically injured.

Three Municipalities Show Slight Increases In Value of Building

Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt Ahead of Last Year for First Nine Months But City Down; Greater Victoria Building Since First of Year Value at Nearly $1,500,000; Oak Bay's Total Nearly as Large as Victoria's

Building in the Greater Victoria area during the first nine months of this year was close to the $1,500,000 mark, a survey of permit figures issued by the city and the three adjoining municipalities indicates.

Although this is a decrease in the total from the amount for the same period last year the figures reveal several interesting facts, the chief being that Oak Bay, Saanich and Esquimalt have all been more busy in the building line this year than last and show increases. Another outstanding point of interest is that Oak Bay has had practically as much building this year as the city.

This is accounted for mainly by the fact that by far the largest proportion of building costs this year has been for new residences, ranging from small $2,000 and $3,000 structures to more palatial $10,000 and $15,000 homes. A large number of these have been built in the Oak Bay area.

For the combined four districts, the actual total up to to-day from the first of the year is $1,447,731, made up as follows: Victoria, $540,620; Oak Bay, $515,702; Saanich, $337,649; and Esquimalt, $64,760.

Lack of business building construction has kept the city total down. Last year the nine-month figure was $1,591,967, but this amount included the large contract for the new Empress Hotel laundry.

Oak Bay reports ninety-two new residences for the nine-month period, an increase of twenty over last year, and giving an advance of about 3 per cent in the total value. September building in Oak Bay was valued at $26,425 as against $26,907 last year.

Victoria's building in September was $28,232 against $120,563 last year. In Saanich there was about a 10 per cent increase in building values during the nine months, the figures being: 1930, $305,141; 1931, $337,649. September permits were $71,395, against $37,353 last year.

Esquimalt had a 12 per cent increase from $56,370 to $63,760.

Vernon, B.C., Sept. 30.—The desire on the part of some growers to get what they can for their apples, regardless of contracts, has resulted in a decision by the Shippers' Council that McIntosh apples will go out in bulk and that the initial price asked by the council members shall be $25 a ton.

The decision was reached yesterday by the Shippers' Council following a meeting at Kelowna on Monday.

Household "Mac" and Wealthies already packed are to be thrown on the open market for what they will bring. The "get what you can" process is alleged to have been forced on 90 per cent of the shippers by "bootlegging growers."

It is estimated about 60 per cent of the McIntosh apples have already been packed and it is anticipated the better grades and sizes will go into cold storage, thus threatening to drag down with them the prices of late winter apples still on the trees.

There is little confidence among shippers the $25 price can be held.

Company Proves Advertising In Newspapers Best

New York, Sept. 30.—Newspaper advertising will open more doors to prospects than will any other method of advertising or sales promotion, a statement to-day by Howard Dexter, sales manager of the Petroleum Heat and Power Company, manufacturers of oil burners, said. He pointed out that instead of cutting down its advertising appropriation when the business slump, the company had increased its newspaper advertising, with the result that sales had mounted steadily, with this year's business showing an increase of 183 per cent over last year.

Dollar Down To Eighty-one At Seattle To-day

Canadian Currency Down to 85 3-4 Cents on New York Market

Decline at New York Greatest Since Present Movement Started

Seattle, Sept. 30.—Exchange rates against Canada here to-day were: Coins, 19 per cent; currency, 18; cheques, 17.

Yesterday the discounts were 14, 13 and 12.

AT NEW YORK
New York, Sept. 30.—Opening weaker at 12 1/4 per cent discount, the Canadian dollar dropped sharply at noon to-day to 14 1/4 on the local foreign exchange market.

To-day's drop in dollar quotations was the most pronounced since the present downward movement commenced twelve days ago. Yesterday Canadian dollars closed here at 11 1/4 per cent discount.

The British pound was at $3.91.

CITY COUNCIL OF SIX URGED FOR VICTORIA

Ratepayers' Association Presents Platform on Which Candidates Will Run

No Further Grant to Publicity Bureau Without Referendum Is Suggestion

That the City Council be composed of a mayor and five aldermen, that the cost of civic education be curtailed and that the penalties on unpaid taxes be abolished and the interest on arrears decreased, were the three chief planks in the platform which candidates endorsed by the Victoria Ratepayers' Association will take their stand at the Municipal elections in December, a general meeting of the association was held yesterday evening by the executive, the members of which drew up the platform. The meeting, which was held in the Chamber of Commerce Auditorium, was presided over by Frank Leroy, president of the association.

TO SELECT CANDIDATES

It was explained by Mr. Leroy and Frank Higgins, K.C., that the object of the association in preparing the platform and intending to offer a complete slate of officials for the mayoralty, aldermanic and school boards and police commissioners was to reduce civic taxation and secure a more compact form of running all civic affairs. Much discussion followed the reading of the various clauses, but they were accepted by the meeting and full power was given the executive to select men and women as candidates for the various public offices, provided they were willing to place themselves at the disposal of the association's platform. The executive will now look over the field of those willing to run for civic office, name the tickets and report to a general meeting of the association at a date to be named later.

Following is the platform as accepted by the association yesterday evening:

1. That the constitution of the aldermanic board be changed by reducing the number of aldermen to five (5), and a mayor.

2. That the mayor's indemnity be $3,000 per annum.

3. That the aldermanic indemnities be $400 each per annum.

4. That the cost of city administration be reduced by eliminating all duplication of officials and unnecessary employees and that the salaries of civic employees, in excess of $100 a month be reduced by being based on the cost of living.

SEPTEMBER COOL HERE THIS YEAR; SUNSHINE DOWN

Month Second This Year to End Below Average in Heat and Sunshine

For the second time this year a month drew to a close with temperature and sunshine figures below average, it was shown by F. Napier Denison to-day in his weather report.

During the first twenty-nine days of September, the mean temperature stood at fifty-six, one degree below the usual, while the total hours of sunshine were 163 hours thirty-six minutes, which is forty-seven hours below average.

In rainfall, however, the month was higher than usual by .75 of an inch, 2.27 inches having fallen. This brought the total precipitation for the first nine months of 1931 to twenty inches, 5.08 in excess of the average.

The warmest day was recorded on the standard screen at the top of Gonzales Hill on September 13, when the mercury rose to sixty-nine. At the lower level station it was one degree higher on September 22. The lowest mark registered at the upper station was forty-six in the standard screen and thirty-seven on the grass last Thursday, while last Friday the thermometers at the base of the hill showed the mercury to have fallen to thirty-six in the screen and thirty on the grass.

June was the only other month this year during which the temperature and sunshine were down.

With the city's wet months, November and December, still to come, the precipitation for the entire year was expected to be far in excess of that of other years.

From a farmer's point of view the figures were looked upon favorably, since a rainy autumn is considered generally beneficial.

STONE BARRIER ON ROAD LEADS TO GUN PLAY

Posse of Farmers Near Hepburn, Sask., Captures Youth After Chase

He Is Accused of Placing Stones on Highway to Stop Travelers

Saskatoon, Sask., Sept. 30.—Alleged to have placed a trap for travelers by placing a stone barrier across a highway near Hepburn, Abram Loewen, seventeen, was captured early this morning by a posse of district farmers following a brief shooting affray in which the youth was slightly wounded by shotgun pellets.

Loewen was handed over to Sgt. Pearson of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police at Rosetown, who questioned him. A revolver Loewen is said to have fired at the farmers is being sought by additional officers sent from Saskatoon.

A. F. Peters of Hepburn narrowly escaped injury when he reached the obstruction of stones on the highway to Saskatoon. Stopping his machine in time he turned about and sped back to Hepburn. He hastily gathered a posse of farmers, who went out in a truck.

The alleged gunman leaped into view as the states bearing the farmers stopped at the line of boulders. A farmer in the truck fired a shotgun, and after firing his revolver the hold-up man ran for cover in an adjoining field. An exciting chase followed. Struck in the foot and back when more shots were fired at him, the youth surrendered.

DUMP DUTY

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—The dumping provisions of the Customs Act will hereafter apply on importations from Great Britain for which less than $4.88 2-3 in Canadian currency for each pound sterling is paid.

This is provided for in an order-in-council approved to-day. The order-in-council states that "it is hereby ordered in respect of goods imported into Canada from Great Britain, in case a sum less than $4.88 2-3 in Canadian currency for each pound sterling of the invoice be paid for the said goods, the actual selling price of the goods to the importer shall be regarded as less than the fair market value of the goods when sold for home consumption and the provisions of Section 6 of the customs tariff shall apply."

PRINCE RUPERT WANTS RAIL LINK WITH PEACE AREA

Prince Rupert, Sept. 30.—The city council is sending a resolution to the federal government protesting against expending money on extending the P.G.E. to Prince George at a time when the farmers of the Peace River district are so badly in need of a railway to help them to get their crops to market. The resolution suggests the first line to be built should be that connecting the Peace River with the Canadian National main line.

Twelve of the persons arrested yesterday evening were remanded for trial.

Several persons were knocked down and one man was injured by a horse's hoofs in to-day's clash.

The unemployed then dispersed to Hyde Park, where they surrounded a man riding a horse. The rider, clad in a green coat, fawn breeches and gaiters, dismounted and attempted to escape, but was unable to get away until mounted police charged into the crowd.

For some time afterward police rode up and down the sidewalks of Oxford Street while shoppers and others hurried out of their way.

The demonstration yesterday evening terminated in general laughter on both sides when the guards of the crowd were pushed back and order restored.

Canadian Press
Bienfait, Sask., Sept. 30.—Eleven carloads of Royal Canadian Mounted policemen armed with machine guns, rifles and batons, swept into this town, storm centre of the coal strike area, a little after noon to-day.

They possessed warrants for the arrest of James Sloan, Calgary, president of the Mine Workers' Union, Martin J. Fortin, secretary of the union, and Sam Scarlett, Saskatchewan organizer.

They were headed by Inspectors Moorehead and Carmo and Detective-Sergeant Mortimer. The motorcars, which carried about sixty policemen, reached the centre of the town about 12:30 and drew up in front of a cafe, alleged frequently to house the strike leaders.

As the officers entered the building a machine gun, mounted on a service truck, was trained on the doorway while all roads leading past the building were closed.

BUILDINGS SEARCHED
Failing to find the men, the officers withdrew and the crowd moved on to the hotel, where a similarly elaborate but futile attempt to apprehend the organizers was carried out. The trucks then withdrew and deployed around the outskirts of the town, lining up on the south side of Main Street. Following that a systematic search of buildings was carried out.

MINISTER PLACES BLAME
Canadian Press
Regina, Sept. 30.—Direct blame for much of the trouble in the Estevan coal field leading up to the present strike and culminating in yesterday afternoon's tragic riots is laid by Senator G. D. Robertson, Federal Minister of Labor, on James Sloan of Calgary, president of the Mine Workers' Union, and his associates, including a woman, Mrs. Alice Brule.

Replying to criticisms of the government for not taking action earlier the senator in an interview to-day said the striking miners themselves had precluded the possibility of such action by breaking the law in quitting work without first asking for a board of conciliation.

WATCHED BY CROWDS
Handfuls of strikers and women and children crowded the street corners, watching the procession, but no trouble was experienced. The police then left on a tour of the mines in (Concluded on Page 2)

London, Sept. 30.—British unemployed clashed with police again to-day as cases arising from a demonstration near the House of Commons yesterday evening were heard in the Bow Street police court.

WESTERN PREMIERS ARE TO DISCUSS EXPENDITURE COSTS

Canadian Press
Montreal, Sept. 30.—Subjects to be discussed at the conference of the four western premiers in Calgary October 1 are now being considered, says Mr. Brownlee. The agenda is usually taking shape. The range of subjects will be wide and will cover problems arising from the difficult economic situation. Uniform measures for reduction of expenditures and some effective way of dealing with the problems resulting from the rapidly decreasing revenues will be much to the front when the four western heads get together.

Alberta's government has been having tentative discussions with officials of the civil service and is ready to make proposals at the conference with a view to working out uniform policy for the western provinces. Any such salary reductions, however effected, according to the premier, will apply not only to the civil service but to the ministers and officials as well.

U.B.C. CLASSES SHOW INCREASE

Vancouver, Sept. 30.—In spite of increased tuition fees, the total number of students enrolled at the University of British Columbia this year is higher than in 1930. Total registrations for 1931-32 are 1,932, as compared with 1,920 at this date last year. It was reported to the board of governors of the university yesterday evening.

In the faculties of art and science there are 1,301 students, of whom 404 are in first year. Last year there were 1,468 in these faculties, with 582 first-year students. This year 104 students are training to be teachers, as compared with sixty-two in 1930. The faculty of agriculture has an enrollment of fifty-three, compared with fifty last year, and in applied science there are 284, as compared with 283 in 1930.

AS DEPRESSION ENDS, CANADA'S POSITION BEST

Dominion Has Most to Offer Among Nations, Says B. C. Nicholas

Canadian Press
Vancouver, Sept. 30.—Canada's prospects and suggestions for improving certain conditions in the Dominion, and the world depression were discussed by B. C. Nicholas, editor of The Victoria Daily Times, in an address before the Vancouver Rotary Club yesterday.

Referring to pessimists who predict the end of all things is at hand, the speaker likened them to the ostrich which buries its head in the sand and is ignorant of what is going on. On the other hand, Utopia was not just around the corner, he said.

"Depressions are more or less natural," he said. "We shall have them again. The world would never advance without them."

"In adversity lies the foundation of future success. Achievements in art, literature and science all spring from adversity."

"When we burn ourselves economically we try to avoid a similar experiment in the future."

MORE TALK NOW
"The depressions of the past were not talked about so much," he said. "The reason—the present one is—bathos—more than those of the past is because to-day we have the radio, quick telegraphic transmission and other means of informing the world of conditions."

"The Old Country has been fighting depression since the war, and steered itself to it, while in America it is new to us and we are unduly sensitive."

"Why, the people of thirty years ago, if they could see us now, would think we are reeking in material wealth," declared Mr. Nicholas. "This is because Canada and the United States have been spoiled by inflation. Both countries have passed through worse conditions in the past, but they did not talk so much about it."

HAS MOST TO OFFER
Mr. Nicholas declared that of all countries Canada now was the most promising and had the most to offer materially and otherwise.

The speaker emphasized advantages Canada will enjoy when the Pacific Ocean supplants the Atlantic as the battleground for world commerce, stressing particularly possibilities of trade with the Orient.

The trade of the East with Canada in the past had been less than half of Canada's imports from the United States, he said.

TOO MUCH GOVERNMENT
Mr. Nicholas declared the Dominion was embarrassed by too much government, with its federal administration, nine provincial and many municipal governments. Cost of government was too high, he said. "While liberties may be taken with government, there is a point beyond which we can not stretch," he said amid applause.

The speaker also referred to the danger of lowering the standard of public life by the existence of unchecked campaign funds, declaring some system must be set up to correct that evil.

"We must take care," he said, "to preserve the natural resources of our country. Unless steps are taken soon, our timber stands will be entirely depleted, and this also applies to other resources."

London, Sept. 30.—The Commons yesterday evening gave the National Government a majority of fifty-five votes on third reading of the National Economy Bill—the measure which empowers the government to make its drastic cuts in national expenditures by the order-in-council method.

Stainforth Flies British Seaplane 415 Miles An Hour

At Calshot He Averages 408.8 Miles an Hour on Four Laps, Beating His Own Schneider Cup Record of 379.05 Miles

Canadian Press
London, Sept. 30.—A new world speed record of 415 miles an hour to-day stamped Flight-Lieut. G. H. Stainforth as the fastest man on wings. He topped his previous mark of 386.87 miles an hour on the second of four laps over a three-kilometer (one and seven-eighths miles) course at Calshot yesterday. His average was 408.8 miles an hour as compared with the figure of 379.05 he made during the recent Schneider Cup races.

The judges officially announced his time for the four laps as calculated by an electric camera as 415.2, 406.1, 409.5 and 405.4.

He flew an S.B. seaplane, driven by an especially-built Rolls-Royce engine described as the most powerful plane motor ever built.

SPECTATORS ANXIOUS
Although the weather was considered only barely safe, Lieutenant Stainforth took off over the Solent easily and was soon buried in the mist. He made the turns with dexterity and continued around the course with the outlines of his plane hardly visible. He landed at 100 miles an hour while the spectators gasped.

"I believe I have broken the record," he said quietly as he rejoined his wife.

EVOLUTION IS POPULAR NOW

Capacity Crowds Hear Jeans and Bishop Barnes Give Views in London

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 30.—The mystery of evolution is drawing never-failing audiences to the sessions of the British Association for the Advancement of Science here. The astronomers are having mighty battles with the geologists over where man came from and where he is going.

"The universe is breaking up and doubling its size every 1,400 million years, yet it is only at the beginning of its career," said Sir James Jeans, distinguished astronomer.

"Evolution is complete," added Dr. Robert Broom, famous South African geologist.

LARGER HALL NEEDED
Eugenics are proving most popular with women. 90 per cent of every audience which crowds the eugenics section being feminine.

So great was the demand for tickets to the meetings where evolution was discussed yesterday that the meeting moved from South Kensington to the Central Hall, Westminster.

"Whatever happens to the sun and stars, the solid earth will endure," said Sir James Jeans. "The physical universe never has any choice. It must periodically move along a side road to a predestined end. The most consoling thought I can offer is that when the worst comes to the worst we shall none of us be here."

BISHOP BARNES SPEAKS
Bt. Rev. Ernest W. Barnes, modernist Bishop of Birmingham, said that periodically—but rarely at intervals of less than ten or 100 million years—collision between the planetary systems had taken place and planetary systems had been born. "Ours is possibly the youngest of the planetary systems," he said.

"On the cooling earth primitive forms of life appeared at least 1,000 million years ago. Finally, about a million years ago, the sub-man emerged from a group of anthropoid apes."

New York, Sept. 30.—A Minnesota livestock specialist to-day predicted Russia, with its state farm enterprises, would be able some day to undersell this continent and the world in agricultural products. ### A HIGHWAY COMMISSION

ALTHOUGH MOST OF THE NEWSpapers of the province, irrespective of political leanings, are cordially in favor of the creation of a highway commission for British Columbia, the morning paper reiterates its objection to the proposal. It argues that "in matters of this character there is a principle involved of a nature about which there is a good deal of loose thinking in these latter days." It says that principle is the exercise by the legislative authority, "with every vigilance and effect, of constitutional control over public expenditures."

We then are told that the resolution advocating the plan, endorsed recently by the Automobile Club of British Columbia and the Good Roads League,
"was most unhappily worded, and displayed an ignorance of constitutional responsibility..." that "just so long as any interested parties, outside of constitutional authority, for whatever purposes seek to control expenditures of the Crown the same criticism will be levelled as has been done in the case of a highway commission...."

The objective of the two bodies advocating a highway commission is the complete removal of road building and maintenance from political interference.
The implication that it would run riot with public funds need not be taken seriously. Such a body naturally would be required to submit its annual budget to the Legislature and the Legislature would have to vote the funds for its use. In this way its spending would be adequately controlled. The benefit to the province, however, would result from a highway policy governed solely by actual requirements, not determined by vote-catching considerations. The present and former provincial Ministers of Public Works quite probably could tell many stories of pressure from prejudiced quarters for roads that were not necessary, but, in many cases, were built because it was considered good politics to build them.

A competent non-partisan highway commission would have no compunction in turning a deaf ear to the importunities of special favor hunters. It is not always easy for a member of the government in control of the biggest spending department of the public service—who is never allowed to forget what party workers think he owes them—to ignore the wishes of his political friends. But by lifting the province's highway business clear of politics, costly mistakes of the past could be avoided, and the cause of efficiency and economy would be served to good purpose. And we are credibly informed that the government favors
the commission plan.

ONE HAPPY COUNTRY

WITH HER BONDS AT PAR, FEW UNemployed, stable foreign trade, normal taxation, the once war-ravished little country of Belgium is now one of the economic bright spots in a gloomy world.
A survey has been conducted in Brussels among statesmen, economists, bankers, industrialists and workers to discover the reasons for her happy position.

Among the explanations listed were: first, shortly after the war's devastation, industry was rebuilt along most modern lines, giving the country an advantage over other countries with antiquated equipment;
second, mechanization of the coal industry; and, third,
careful financing by which reserves were built up to be drawn upon in the present lean years, instead of being dissipated in mining booms, in supporting prices of commodities, in stock "melons" and in declaring high dividends on which to "bull" and distribute stocks.

Then, there are other items important in Belgium's general economy, making it the most secure in all Europe. M. Paul Vanzeland, director of the Belgian National Bank and secretary of the Belgian Economic Council, sets them out in this way:

A large part of Belgian industry remained in the hands of small individual owners and families who,
with amazing suppleness, adapt themselves to changing conditions.

Belgian industry did not make the mistake of over-expanding or tying up surpluses in non-liquid investments.

Moreover, the worker employed in the city can,
nevertheless, live in the country, where, besides enjoying low rent, he has a patch of land which his wife manages with consummate skill. Truck gardening, poultry raising and rabbit breeding add to the family exchequer.

This last item ought to make glad the heart of our own Mr. E. C. Mayers, who recently proposed a plan based on suggestions for popularizing the simple life to a similar extent here to ease the burden of financial distress. The other items are commended to our financiers. For our politicians there is an item recalling that Belgium, through a crisis in 1926, learned the necessity of ending "reckless public expenditures, unbalanced budgets and borrowing."

DOCTORS, HOSPITALS, NURSES

PRESENT ECONOMIC CONDITIONS are steadily and surely pushing western Canada toward state medicine, as municipalities and provincial governments are having placed on them the responsibility for medical care, and its cost, of an increasing proportion of the population.

Municipal doctors and union hospitals have been instituted in various parts of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Dr. G. Harvey Agnew, secretary of the Department of Hospital Service of the Canadian Medical Association, in his address to the organization in Toronto, said they have come to stay. He reported they had proved satisfactory and that the west and Nova Scotia also were quietly, steadily drifting toward state medicine.

Responsibility for necessary skilled treatment and its cost is more and more being thrown on public bodies, especially in areas afflicted with unemployment, and, under these conditions, medical men are turning more and more to the state as their source of certain recompense.

At the same time, problems are arising in the nursing profession. Canadian hospitals have depended for their nursing services on girl probationers, who give their services in exchange for their training. For years the hospitals have been turning out under this system graduate nurses in large numbers. The excess numbers of these nurses not required in Canada have crossed the line to the south, where they have been readily absorbed in the growing cities of the United States. Now, however, the United States field for nurses has become so over-crowded that regulations are being passed barring foreign nurses.
Many are being forced to return to Canada, only to add to the surplus already here. With the opportunities for reward in the nursing field so much diminished for their graduates, hospitals are now faced with the question as to the degree of exploitation on their part in obtaining cheap labor from undergraduates, who are later to be thrown on an overcrowded market.

The doctor, the state patient, and the nurse is each a factor in the trend toward nationalization of the medical services, with every step in that direction adding to the problems and burdens of directorates
now struggling to keep our hospitals out of debt.

TROPICAL FRUIT PREFERENCE

MORE TARIFF COMPLICATIONS FOR
Ottawa. The West Indies now suspect that Canada has given Australia greater trade advantages than she has given to them.

The Jamaica Imperial Association points out that in 1925 the understanding was Canada would extend to other British Dominions or possessions only such preferences as accorded the British West Indies, but that under the new treaty with Australia, Canada has given that country preferences on sugar, rice and peanuts not enjoyed by the Indies. The matter is to be taken up with Canada, with the object of getting equally preferential treatment.

With tropical fruits and other products costing what they do in Canada, the greater the preferences with such countries, the greater will be the satisfaction of the Canadian consumer.

PETTICOATS BEHIND THE GROUCH?

NOTHING IN ALL OF THE STORIES about the recent British naval "mutiny" has been more interesting than the following little paragraph, taken from a cable dispatch from London:

"The men will be granted week-end leave and will have a chance to talk over the recent events with their wives, who are blamed by many officers in naval circles as the real originators of the strike."
This provides an unsuspected angle from which to view the whole affair. The Jack Tar is apt to be a married man these days. He is not the carefree, roistering rover of the old days. When his pay is cut the little woman will call it to his attention
just as she would if he were a factory hand.

The British government, one imagines, now will take the wives into account.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

A TEN-YEAR PLAN FOR CHINA
The Christian Science Monitor

If the Russian experiment has taught the world
nothing else, it certainly has taught it that planning is the answer to many industrial problems. On all sides, plans are being concocted in government bureaus, in board rooms, in public forums. But there are two kinds of planning: one that is fitted into the framework of an individualist society, and the other that is synonymous with the collectivist state. In this latter category is the ten-year plan which the Nanking Government has just announced.

The plan would put agricultural China through such an industrial forcing process that it would emerge the equal of some of our leading industrial nations.

COMMERCIALIZED BOXING
The Springfield Republican

A revelation of the present status of professional boxing is the passage by the Massachusetts Legislature of a bill allowing a boxer to deliver three, four blows before being disqualified in a contest. It testifies to the degeneracy of boxing, or to the degeneracy of the Legislature—perhaps both. Three foul blows! And any one or all of them could be deliberately vicious. If three fouls, why not six? Good sportsmanship would never tolerate a series of foul blows, but the "boxing game" would, as now conducted. Obviously, this sport is grossly commercialized, or its promoters would not desire such license for prize fighters. The state law regulating professional boxing has evidently done little to refine
it. The sport remains foul in more sense than fine.
The more fouls it allows the lower it gets.

MR. TWEED'S PROPOSALS
The Brockville Recorder

Some most constructive suggestions in regard to the provision of local employment for those in need of it are made by S. C. Tweed, M.L.A. for North Waterloo, who declares that in nearly all parts of the province a large number of men could be employed upon such work as the following:

"1. Trim trees along highways.
"2. Repair and improve township roads. Work of this kind would not only help the unemployed, but it would relieve the farmers in the townships from some of the burden of taxation for roads.

"3. Level land along highways, and construct paths for pedestrians and those who ride bicycles. These paths could also be used in the winter time by farmers who are obliged to use sleighs to get in off the side roads. At the present time the farmer is in the pos-sion of having to use a sleigh from his farm out to the main highway, and then get along the best he can, because of the fact the snow has been removed from the paved road.

"4. Plant trees along highways and on unused land.
"5. Remove earth banks and other obstructions that prevent a clear view of railway tracks at level crossings."

Mr. Tweed has also written to Premier Henry suggesting that during the approaching winter the provincial government should modify its attitude in regard to the provision of unemployment relief funds for the construction of public buildings.

Loose Ends

A column of complete confusion—concerning gold standards and all that—my friend's income—and a new house on our road.

By H. B. W.

THE MORE I read about the gold standard and all that sort of thing
—even with the valuable explanations of Mr. George Pudbury and Mr. Bank-—the less I know of it. The latest information, which leaves me more ignorant than ever, is an article by a fellow who has been through the vaults of the Federal Reserve Bank of the United States to see its supplies of gold.
He says it is "an unexpectedly sobering thing to look $500,000,000 in the face—slim, neat bricks at once the anchor and the hurricane of human dreams—warm and hypnotic to the eye—not a symbol of luxury, but value itself." This, as a wise commentator in The Vancouver Province has pointed out, is very funny. For, as he suggests, if the visitor to the gold vaults of the Federal Reserve Bank were cast up on a desert island with all this gold it would not be long before he would be willing to give it all away for one loaf of bread. So that under certain conditions $500,000,000 in gold would only be worth about seven cents; and The Province commentator suggests that if other nations follow Britain and go off the gold standard that is precisely what may happen to the Federal Reserve Bank's hoard. Instead of a gold standard it will find itself in possession of a gold brick.

THIS IS interesting, but while I am not yet cast up on a desert island,
I am still hopelessly at sea. I mean to say, all reports agree that Britain is better off because it has abandoned the gold standard. Its money is down and consequently it can produce more cheaply than other nations, undersell them in world markets. This has started a sudden spurt in British industry. And, of course, other countries are eager to buy in England because their more valuable money goes so much further than it would elsewhere.
But if one country can't effect such a simple reform why not everybody? And if other nations bring their money down as low as Britain's where will her advantage lie in world markets? If it is so simple as this, why don't we all inflate our currencies and start a race to see who can make his money the least valuable and, at the same time, the most useful?

YOU WILL pardon my ignorance, I hope, but I find all these problems baffling. I can't even understand the value of gold values. I can't understand why Canadian money should be less valuable than American money just because we haven't got so much gold in proportion to our total circulation. In a pinch you couldn't eat gold, but you could eat wheat, and we've got too much of that. We've got everything necessary to support life, except oranges, rubber and movie studios, and in greater abundance per capita than any other part of the world. But because we haven't got quite enough gold in our banks to suit the views of somebody or other—though we have more than anybody else in our mines—our money is down.

WHAT HAS happened as a result of all this monkey business everywhere in the world is that the human business of trading one thing for another has been smothered under these complications of exchange, of tariffs, of debts and all the other top-heavy machinery of finance. So that a nation which has too much wheat can't trade it for some neighbor's surplus of rubber, and another nation which wants to get rid of lumber can't take oranges in return for it because somebody has too much gold or too little.

IT REMINDS me of a friend of mine,
a curious fellow who maintains an elaborate set of books to manage his income, who pays everything by cheque to keep a record of his spending, who budgets ahead even for his cigarettes, who manages his income and his private business more systematically than a government. The only trouble is that he has practically no income and often can't eat enough.
On a larger scale we manage our world trade magnificently with exchange and gold values and currency and credits and what-not, and the only minor weakness in the arrangement is that, at the present rate, we soon will have no world trade to manage. And the most curious feature of all is that the people who have the articles of real human value, who have food and materials for housing and clothing mankind, suffer the most. The United States, for example, is hungrier to-day than it ever has been when its food surplus is largest. The man who has his labor to offer can't trade it for food and the man who has food can't trade it in some other country for something he wants.

THUS TO AN untutored mind it seems that, having created our present remarkable organization of trade, we have the organization "but not the trade. We have the machinery but we suddenly find we can't sustain life with it because machinery is non-edible. It reminds me of a beach picnic I attended last summer, when the most elaborate preparations were made and after six fine automobiles had driven sixty miles we discovered that, while we had everything else you need for a picnic, we had left the food at home. But do not take this too seriously. I am an ignorant fellow on these larger issues. No doubt I have misrepresented everything and made it appear too blue, because it is still early in the morning and I haven't had my breakfast yet. No doubt everything is all right and only people's

Ignorance prevents them from realizing breakfast, one is not apt to appreciate finer things when one's stomach is empty.

LET US turn to something more cheerful. If you have any doubts about the surviving vigor of our race you should come out and see the things that happen out our way. I do not refer merely to the remarkable vigor of mind and firmness of purpose which is required to keep a man writing this kind of stuff on a day like this when he might as much more profitably be engaged in harvesting green squash or sawing oak limbs for the winter. I will also omit all mention of the vigor which went into the making of my vegetable garden and the playhouse we built for the little girl next door. The evidence of vigor which I have in mind is much more striking than that.
I refer to the little house that is a building down at the end of the street on the hill overlooking George Pudbury's corn fields.

THE HOUSE at the corner has been a-building since early spring and I don't suppose any house of similar size ever took so long to build. Nor do I think that anyone has gone to such trouble to build a house before.
The young fellow who is building this house has to work in a store all day and he only has the evening for building. This was all right in the long summer evenings when he could work comfortably until 9 o'clock or longer, but since the days have begun to draw in his difficulties have increased. By the time he gets home from the store it is dark. I suppose he would have to give up in despair or employ someone else, but I underestimated the fibre of our modern youth. I went for a walk in the moonlight down that way last night and to my amazement I found that the house on the hill was still a-building, even in the darkness.
The young fellow had parked his car so that the headlights were turned fully on the back of his house and he was busy there putting a roof on the porch. And so far into every night.
Such a young man, I feel, is lost and lusted in a store and it probably never occurs to him, as he builds his little house, that he is a true empire builder.

A CORRECTION

The attention of The Times has been called to a letter appearing in the issue of September 26 under the caption: "John Joe." The Times informed that the writer of the letter to the editor was incorrect in stating that Mr. John Day used his position in the Chalmers yard to secure favorable consideration for his sons and daughter. The Times is now credibly informed that the daughter never did work at Chalmers' and that although the three boys did it probably there were not foremen, and obtained their employment in the usual way and without the influence of their father.
The Times, as the medium through which consideration for his sons and daughter, gladly accepts this information and makes the correction, expressing at the same time its apology for the insertion of the offending paragraph.

Judge E. Murphy Talks On Married Women In Jobs

Toronto, Sept. 30.—The position of married women in business and professional life was determined entirely by their capacity, declared Judge E. Murphy of Edmonton, Alta., addressing the local branch of the Canadian Women's Press Club here yesterday. If a man could make a better pie or make a better cake than a woman, said Judge Murphy, he was entitled to do it. On the other hand, women were entitled to follow pursuits usually exclusively occupied by males, if they were capable of doing so. "There are women in Alberta who are earning the taxes on the basis of their husbands have been unable to make a profit, and they are earning enough to keep the home fires burning."

ENJOYABLE TEA GIVES STIMULUS TO WORKROOM

Local Council Tea Yesterday Raises About $125 For Plan To Aid Needy Women

Encouraging stimulus to the community movement to establish a workroom for the assistance of unemployed, needy women was forthcoming at the very successful tea sponsored by the Local Council of Women and held at Spencer's yesterday afternoon. Over 350 attended the affair and, thanks to the generosity of David Spencer Limited, which placed the restaurant and service at the disposal of the council has contributed the tea and coffee, and to the members of the organizations who supplied the dainty refreshments, the expenses were almost negligible and about $125 will be available for the beneficiary fund.

MAYOR'S ADDRESS

Mayor Anson spoke briefly at the opening of the affair, commending the initiative of the women's organizations in launching the workroom scheme with its principle of assisting needy women by virtue of work rather than by giving charity. After complimenting the Local Council of Women upon the success of its tea yesterday, the Mayor wished the workroom project every success. Miss Crease presided.

During the afternoon the workroom project was explained as being aimed to assist needy women to earn a little money to keep a roof over their heads. While work, such as the renovating and altering of garments for charitable organizations, would be provided, there was no intention of competing in the labor market, as this would defeat the very object of the workroom, it was pointed out.

MUSICAL PROGRAMME

The attractiveness of the occasion was enhanced by the delightful musical programme arranged by Mrs. J. O. Cameron, those taking part being Mrs. Henry L. Watson, of Carmel, California, who sang "Star of Me," "A Fool" and "Rose in the Bud," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. C. W. Carr; Mrs. Jessie Benn, violinist, who contributed two Massenet compositions, accompanied by Helen Ockenden. Baritone solo was also sung by Mr. Patrick Mullane, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. G. W. Chapman, his numbers including "I Might Come to You" and "Let Me Like a Soldier Fall." Beautiful bouquets of flowers given by Mrs. J. H. Fletcher from her garden and artistically arranged by Mrs. S. J. Willis, were presented to Mrs. Cameron and the soloists.

SPECIAL GUESTS

Masses of Michaelmas daisies and golden rods were used in decoration of the tea room. Guests invited to the head table were D. B. Plunkett, M.P.; Mayor and Mrs. Anson; Mr. Tolmie, Sir Richard and Lady Lake, Fred Landberg, James H. Beatty, M.P.; Mrs. William Grant and Miss Mary Lawson.

The president, Miss Crease, and other members of the Local Council executive, Mesdames MacLean, Llewellyn Thomas, C. B. Little, J. W. Gibson and A. E. Hopkins constituted the reception committee. Mrs. J. W. Gibson and Mrs. Fred Parsons were the energetic and able conversers, and Mrs. J. L. White, Mrs. W. McManus, Mrs. Haylop and Mrs. Marsh presided at the receipt of customs.

EX-EMPRESS TO SEEK DIVORCE

Chinese Wife of Suan Tung Says She Is Ill-treated

Tientsin, China, Sept. 30.—The domestic affairs of China's former Emperor, Suan Tung, who has lived in retirement here since Henry Pu Yi's since his ejection from Peking in 1924, are receiving considerable publicity due to the threat of his second wife to sue him for divorce on the ground of ill-treatment.

Shu Fei, daughter of a Manchurian noble, went into the imperial household nine years ago at the age of sixteen, and later was married to the "boy Emperor." Recently, on the pretext of a shopping expedition, she walked out of his residence in the Japanese concession and fled to the home of a relative.

She sent a letter to her husband announcing she would apply for a divorce. Suicide was preferable, she said, to existence in a household where she was so badly used.

Adherents of the former ruler grew indignant at her action, and Chinese papers have published a letter from the girl's brother, a staunch monarchist, condemning his sister for her disobedience and demanding she return to her husband.

Shu Fei and her supporters remain firm in demanding a separation, and a divorce action is threatened unless a friendly settlement is reached. In the event of the case coming before the courts the point will have to be decided as to whether suit can legally be brought against the ex-emperor.

By the agreement under which the Manchus abdicated in 1912, it was stipulated the Emperor should retain his title and receive the respect accorded to a foreign sovereign. Successive Chinese governments have ignored the compact, but the Manchus claim it still remains in force, placing Suan Tung above the law.

Extra special is the 50¢ lunch served at the Met Cafe.

JUBILEE W.A. GIVING MUCH TO HOSPITAL

Over $1,200 Worth of Supplies Voted to Institution Yesterday at Meeting

To the long list of generous contributions made to the Jubilee Hospital over a period of years by its Women's Auxiliary was added another substantial gift yesterday afternoon when, at its monthly meeting, the auxiliary voted some hundreds of dollars' worth of supplies and assistance to the institution. The gathering was held in the new nurses' home, Mrs. W. A. Chambers, the president, being in the chair.

Purchases authorized by the gathering from the W.A. funds included sheets and quilts to the value of $800 for the general use of the hospital; $400 to defray the cost of redecorating the entrance and corridor of the children's ward; the purchase of two new receiving bassinets, also gowns, towels and quilts for the maternity floor, and the purchasing of a microscope for the nurses' laboratory.

Preliminary plans were made for the annual linen shower to be held at the new nurses' home on Thursday, November 12. Three new members were welcomed to the executive—Mrs. H. G. Teisterman, Mrs. P. E. Taylor and Mrs. G. Sheppard.

"MOUNTIE" SAVES ESKIMO WOMEN

Religious Fanaticism Caused Natives to Stone Women; Police Intervention

Halifax, N.S., Sept. 30.—How a Royal Canadian Mounted Police corporal traveled 500 miles by dog sled and arrived at his destination just in time to prevent the stoning to death of several Eskimo women, is described by H. W. Porter, Halifax Herald staff writer, who made the trip north this year on the government supply ship Beothic, and heard the story at Port Burwell.

Some two years ago an Eskimo known as Miller, who had become converted to Christianity, began to preach on his own responsibility, taking as his circuit Leaf River and Port Chimo in Ungava district. He conceived the idea that his flock must wear on their clothing all sorts of decorations, mostly running to stars, squares and circles, and that he as leader, must adopt flowing robes and turbans.

Marching to service with flags on long staves and other procedures were added to the ritual, until the natives last winter had become more and more hysterical. They read the Bible closely, but practically reversed the meaning of its injunctions. Finally they felt they had been literally commanded by God to stone all barren women.

The husbands of one of the women selected for the stoning made the journey over snow and ice to Port Burwell for assistance. On the day of his arrival Corporal F. McInnis left by dogteam for Leaf River, 500 miles away.

He reached Leaf River in record time, just as the stoning was about to commence, and immediately got in touch with Miller through an interpreter. Proceedings were stayed while the corporal invited the evangelist to go to Port Chimo, where there was a white man who knew both languages, and to this Miller readily agreed, declaring a moratorium upon religious bloodshed in the meantime.

Arriving at Chimo, McInnis got out a Bible and with the interpreter, went over in Miller's presence the various passages on which the natives' practices were based. Finally the new apostle was convinced that some, at least, of his ideas were wrong, particularly those concerned with violence, and readily went back to Leaf River and explained his new interpretations to the flock.

The childless women, in fear of their lives, had become half insane, and it was not until life had become normal in the settlement that McInnis made the long trek back to Burwell.

St. Mary's Rummage Sale.—The Women's Guild of St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, will hold a rummage sale on Tuesday morning next in St. Mary's Hall. Donations of goods of suitable for sale will be collected on application to E 6345 or G 7297.

Simple New French Finger Waving Method

Gives Professional Results at Home. No Fuss. No Bother.

HERE'S a unique French discovery that makes it possible to finger wave your hair at home with professional results. The only way known, experts say, that is not gummy and sticky to use. That does not leave a white flaky deposit on hair and scalp. That is not affected by dampness or rain.

It is an exquisite liquid that's as easy to use as a tonic. That makes waving your own hair easier than it used to be using old-fashioned curlers.

Full directions, carefully worked out by French hair dressers, come with every bottle. They show you exactly how to use it through wonderfully simplified charts.

Thus, you're assured of perfect results every time. Deep, natural finger waves no matter how straight your hair may be. Waves that often hold perfectly as long as two full weeks.

It is called Jo-cur Wavecel and is sold at all toilet counters. Economical to use—a month's supply costs only a few cents. Approved and tested by the Good Housekeeping Magazine Bureau.

WHITNEY HEIR QUIETLY WED

Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney Married; Bride's Sea-foam Velvet Gown

Stratford, Pa., Sept. 30.—With only close relatives and friends present, Miss Gwendolyn Crosby Hopkins, daughter of Mrs. Stevens Heckscher, yesterday became the bride of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, of New York.

The ceremony, quiet because of the recent death of Mr. Heckscher, took place at the country home here of Mrs. Heckscher, Rev. Edward Hamilton officiating.

Mr. Whitney, who is known to his intimates as "Sonny," is the son of the late Harry Payne Whitney. From his father the young man received the bequest of one of America's great fortunes.

The ceremony took place before an altar of flowers. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mark Hopkins Jr., her only attendant was her half sister, Miss Elizabeth C. Heckscher. Mr. Whitney's best man was Warren Leslie of New York.

SEA-FOAM BRIDAL GOWN

The bride introduced a recent Paris innovation by wearing a tinted gown instead of the conventional white. It was of pale sea-foam panne velvet, made on simple lines. It was sheath-like, close over the hips, falling in a godet flare from the knees. The unusually long train was fan shaped. The sleeves extended close to the wrists and the gown had a V-neck. The veil was of rose point lace which had been worn by her grandmother.

A breakfast followed the wedding ceremony, after which Mr. and Mrs. Whitney left on an extended wedding tour in this country. They will make their home in New York.

HOUSEWIVES "CAN THE SURPLUS" FOR NEEDY

A "Can the Surplus" campaign, the object of which is to preserve the surplus fruits and vegetables of the present bumper crops for distribution among the needy this winter, is spreading among Ohio housewives and seems likely to find favor in other parts of the United States. Above is a group of women of the Grace Reformed Church at Akron canning fruit, donated by farmers, in the church kitchen. At the left is Mrs. Daniel E. Morgan, wife of Cleveland's city manager, at work. The movement is supported by newspapers, city officials, women's clubs, church organizations and other groups.

Canadian Press
St. John, N.B., Sept. 30.—The Dominion Board of the Women's Auxiliary of the Missionary Society, Church of England, will consider a policy of extending its work to include social service and religious education. Mrs. Gilbert Ferrabee of Montreal announced in her presidential address to the forty-fourth annual convention of the board yesterday.

It also was announced the board would take up presidential recommendations to consider the need of simplifying the organization's machinery, as well as undertaking relief work in Saskatchewan.

King's Daughters.—The Ministering Circle of King's Daughters will hold their monthly meeting on Friday at 3 o'clock in the rest rooms.

St. John's A.Y.P.A. Hear Impromptu Speech Programme

St. John's A.Y.P.A. held a meeting in the new A.Y.P.A. room Monday evening. Reports from committees were given and several matters of importance brought up and discussed. A vote of thanks was extended to S. C. Hawkins for his work in connection with A.Y.P.A. A dance is being arranged by St. John's young people for other A.Y.P.A.s of the city on October 30. The main feature of the evening was a number of impromptu speeches, of which there were six, by the following members: "How Can the People Help the Depression?" by Henry Maunsell; "How to Make a Cake," by Helen Thomas; "An Ideal A.Y.P.A. Branch," by John Homan; "The Qualities of a Perfect Canadian Citizen," by John Hooper; "How to Improve Victoria," by Roberta Bosturow; and "An Interesting Book," by a new member of A.Y.P.A., Mr. Jackson. Refreshments were served and another enjoyable evening came to a close.

Metchosis

Harvest Thanksgiving services will be held at St. Mary's Church on Sunday at 11 o'clock. Morning prayer will be followed by Holy Communion. Rev. H. S. Payne will preach. The annual harvest supper will be held in the Metchosis Hall next Tuesday at 7:30 o'clock, under the auspices of the Metchosis branch of the Women's Auxiliary. Guests are expected to bring their own knife, fork and spoon. Lantern slides of the B.C. forest reserves and moving pictures of the Forbidden Plateau will be shown by Claude L. Harrison, to be followed by a comic film for the juveniles. Musical numbers will also be given.

St. Mary's branch of the A.Y.P.A. held their annual meeting on Friday evening at the Quarantine Station. Officers elected were: Honorary president, Rev. H. M. Bolton; president, Ronald Weir; vice-president, Miss Violet Clarke; refreshments convener, Miss Nora Helgesen; literature secretary, Miss Mary Gray; delegates to the Victoria Local Council, Ronald Weir and Miss Betty Cornwall.

The committee arranging the pioneers' entertainment and old time dance, to be held at Metchosis Hall on October 23, met on Friday at the home of H. C. Helgesen. Robinson's Orchestra of Duncan was retained, and H. Evans will act as caller. This orchestra and Mr. Evans are very well known for their specialty of old-time dance music. The Community Club held a rehearsal and instruction in the hall on Saturday evening, with F. Alexander as teacher of the old-time dances. Another class will be held next Saturday.

LIBERAL WOMEN HEAR MACKENZIE

Vancouver Member Criticizes Dominion Government Over P.G.E. Extension Plans

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Sept. 30.—Refusal of the Dominion Government to undertake construction of a further link of the P.G.E. from Prince George to Finlay Forks, at present, was criticized by Hon. Ian Mackenzie, M.P. for Vancouver Centre, at a meeting of the Vancouver Women's Liberal Association yesterday evening.

Mr. Mackenzie criticized the Prime Minister, who had not, he asserted, implemented his pre-election and post-election promises to end unemployment.

The Liberal member agreed the offer of the Dominion Government to share expenses of constructing the P.G.E. from Quesnel to Prince George would be an aid in relieving unemployment, but he felt the move was inadequate in comparison with extending the line into the Peace River Block.

Extension to Prince George, he contended, would do little to reduce the liability of the P.G.E., while he understood a link to Finlay Forks would enable the entire line to meet operating expenses at once.

BRIDGE REPAIRS

He condemned the Dominion Government, and particularly Premier Bennett and Hon. H. H. Stevens, for its attitude in connection with the Second Narrows Bridge. The two ministers, he asserted, had treated the electors of Greater Vancouver in a discourteous fashion in not answering their repeated telegrams. Finally, he stated, the recent telegram received by North Vancouver from the Prime Minister was a most unsatisfactory reply.

The Prime Minister had referred to the bridge as a private undertaking, which, Capt. Mackenzie declared, was actually an obligation both of the federal and provincial governments.

With the bridge down, he declared, hundreds of North Vancouver residents had been driven out of employment and several thousand citizens on the Vancouver side of the inlet were directly affected.

He called on the government immediately to authorize the Harbor Board to grant the loan of $200,000 for repair of the span.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

SOME BABIES HAVE LEGITIMATE EXCUSE TO REFUSE MILK

If a baby belongs to that small group of children who have a personal sensitivity to cows' milk, there will be some quite marked results if he drinks milk. He may develop hives, large, reddish white welts which arise rapidly and may disappear with equal speed. He may show some signs of fever. His eyes may swell or even his mouth, where the milk touches his skin. He may vomit or the bowels become loose. If these symptoms appear only after the baby has taken cows' milk, the mother may suspect that he has an idiosyncrasy for milk which makes this otherwise excellent food a real poison to him. Mrs. R.W.'s letter describes such a problem.

CAN'T TAKE MILK

"I am writing you in regard to my eleven-month-old baby who has weaned herself but cannot take milk in any form. I have tried several kinds, but if she takes even a little, all of her food comes up and she is very sick for a day or two. She weighs twenty-two pounds and has never been sick except when I have tried to give her milk.

"She takes soups, eggs, bacon, drinks the juice of two oranges, and can drink from sixteen to thirty-two ounces of water a day. She sleeps all night with just water to drink, but my friends say she should have milk. I would be so glad to have any advice. She walks everywhere and her legs are as straight as two pins. She has eight teeth."

TRY DIFFERENT MILKS

Apparently this baby has a personal sensitivity to milk. There are several ways in which this may be handled. Possibly she can take dried milk or evaporated milk in very small quantities, even as small as amount as one teaspoonful a day. Continue this for several days, and then increase the amount to two teaspoonfuls. By such small increase the baby may become immune to the irritating action of the milk.

Cows' milk may not affect the baby so it is desirable to give it a trial. Start with small amount in order to note baby's reaction to it. Soybean milk, obtainable in commercial form from your druggist, is a preparation designed for babies who develop eczema from cows' milk. This is a nourishing form of protein, and may have no bad effect on baby.

Eggs and meat are complete proteins, and may be substituted for milk in the diet of the child who has a milk idiosyncrasy. Get a good diet list and follow it exactly, giving the baby meat at noon and egg at night, and trying to add to the menu enough different types of milk to balance the diet. You may have my leaflet, "Week's Menu From One To Two Years" if you will send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

It is possible, also, for a doctor to vaccinate the baby against the irritating action of milk protein. By introducing the milk protein into the system in small amounts, the baby builds up an immunity to it, just as she would to diseases against which she has been vaccinated or immunized. In time she will be able to take amounts large enough to contribute to her nourishment without being affected by them.

To-morrow: "Small Problems Bewilder the Young Mother."

SORT YOUR LAUNDRY BUNDLE

Many separate classifications assure safe, correct washing of all your precious things

THOUGHTFUL care protects your washing from the minute you hand it to our laundry routeman until he returns it—spotlessly, hygienically clean. This care starts with the important task of sorting or classifying each piece according to fabric, color fastness, and other washing qualities.

White goods and colored—linen and ginghams and silks—rompers and lingerie—such is the variety found in the average washday bundle. We know how each material, each color, can best be handled. Colors suspected of not being fast get special treatment. Silks, woolens and rayons are divided into several groups. Light and dark colors are kept apart. Thus the skilled hands of the classifier weave their way through your washing, making sure that everything is started right.

And in each laundering step the same-thoughtful care continues.

VANCOUVER MAN LAUDS "Y" DRIVE

Stanley Brent, Y.M.C.A. Head On Mainland, Praises Apple Day Idea

Commendation of the Victoria Y.M.C.A. Apple Day campaign to be held here on Saturday has been expressed by Stanley Brent, general secretary of the Vancouver "Y." Mr. Brent, here last week, was greatly impressed by the manner in which the boys and young men of the local association have taken up the idea of the drive, and expressed the hope that it would net a good return.

"The suggestion of an apple tag day as a financial effort is decidedly novel, and a new way of helping the Y.M.C.A. financially," writes Mr. Brent. "As far as I know it has never been done before, and Victoria is to be commended on its initiative. The one thing that appeals to me is the fact that young men and boys are doing the work. It is surely a sign of the times when youth is increasingly taking and even demanding a larger share in running affairs. I sincerely trust that the effort will meet with the success hoped for, and especially for the effect it will have on the young men themselves."

In seeking the support of Victorians for the drive, the committee in charge points to the community work done by the Y.M.C.A. in the following list: It outlines some of the organizations which use the association buildings for headquarters and meetings:

Victoria and District Football Association, Junior Football League, Junior Football League, Intermediate Football League, Senior Football League, Lower Island Football Association, Victoria Cycling Club, Roller Hockey League, City Amateur Baseball League, Lower Island Softball Association, Junior Island Softball Association, Lower Island Badminton Association, City League Basketball Association, Sunday school Basketball Association, A.O.U., Referees' Association.

SAYS WHISTLING SIGN OF MORON

New York Professor Says No Great Man Ever Whistles

New York, Sept. 30.—Persons who whistle are morons, devoid of moral stamina and possessed of an inferiority complex, Professor Charles Gray Shaw, of the philosophy department of New York University, asserted yesterday in a vitriolic dissertation on the whistling population of the world, from which he specifically excluded only Einstein, Edison, Mussolini and President Hoover.

"No great or successful man ever whistles," the professor said. "Can you think of Einstein, Edison or Mussolini tuning up to 'When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain'?" Can you think of President Hoover as whistling?

Calling whistling "the unmistakable sign of the moron," Professor Shaw added that "we might call it a part of a person's 'defense mechanism.' After he has set up his psychological barricade of silliness, he sounds a note of war on his foolish whistling. He resolves not to care. He's right, and the world's wrong."

How a simple daily health habit banished a persistent ailment

She was a victim of modern life, modern foods! Nearly always tired, depressed, headache—never just sick, never entirely well. Sluggish internal conditions allowed poisons to form in her system—kept her vitality at a low ebb.

Laxatives were drastic, sickening and lost their power quickly. Then a friend—a bright-eyed, clear-skinned, young-looking woman brimming with good health—told her own health secret. Simply a dash of ENO's in a glass of water every morning. To-day, this once miserable girl will tell you she has just begun to enjoy life.

ENO acts safely and naturally—a wonderful, non-habit-forming regulator.

DISTANCES OF STARS FOUND IN MANY WAYS

Speakers Present Symposium on Subject Before Local Astronomical Society

Ingenuous methods of determining star distances that end to puzzle the layman, and stellar mileage quotations that make him wonder, were discussed at Victoria College yesterday evening at the meeting of the Victoria centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada. A symposium on finding the distances of the stars was given by four speakers, with interspersed comment by Dr. J. A. Pearce, chairman, and closing observations by Dr. J. S. Mackett, Dr. E. S. Beale, the president, is now on the east, and will bring his lecture back with him in a few days.

The speakers and their subjects were: P. C. Green, Surveyor-General B.C., on the trigonometrical method; James Duff, M.A., on the method of stellar motions; P. H. Hughes, M.Sc., on the cepheid variable method; and Dr. Frank Hogg, Ph.D., on the spectroscopic absolute method.

Dr. Hogg, still in his twenties, is an American Canadian, a graduate of Toronto and Harvard and a lecturer in the United States. Before commencing his address, he said he felt somewhat strange coming from a far and speaking on a subject that had been done by the little Sanich Mountain.

The talk was necessarily a somewhat technical nature, and frequent use was made of diagrams and charts. But the general effect on the audience was a sense of wonder at the intellectual elaborations on the simple trigonometrical method to produce the knowledge of the modern astronomer.

ASKETT SUMS UP

A brief summary by Dr. J. S. Mackett summed up the speaker's address. He emphasized how all astronomy must start at the bottom of a problem and go on fundamentals, how the parallax method of determining star distances had used the trigonometrical method of the sun as a base where a simpler trigonometrical method employed the much shorter diameter of the earth, how succeeding methods had brought much farther within the astronomer's calculations and how the whole superstructure was built on the astronomical premises and was not a tool-proof.

There were perhaps 100,000,000,000,000,000 stars in the universe, said Dr. Pearce in his opening remarks, and though the positions of a few of these were known, astronomers only had the idea of the distances of some 2,500.

Dr. Green's trigonometrical method employed the principle of the triangle, the base and the two adjacent sides were known, the vertices could be determined. The speaker pointed out the six properties of the triangle thus used in land measurements, how, with the earth as the base, could be used in determining the distances of the sun and some of the bodies of the solar system. But 2,000 mile base was hopeless for determining the distance of the stars as the star was so far away that the running up from the base to the star would be practically parallel and angle at the vertex would be infinitesimal.

MOVEMENT
A considerable margin of error in the trigonometrical method was to be expected away with the method of parallactic motions. Mr. Duff gave his audience to understand the movement of the sun, first defined by the English astronomer William Herschel, was taken as a line, and in this way a line of hundreds of millions of miles could be employed for the calculations. Dr. Duff thought this method could be termed the secular, or cumulative, method, for progressive position of the sun during succeeding years were considered.

HOLMES NOW AT DOMINION IN NEW PLAY

"An American Tragedy" Is Stirring Drama and Also Stars Frances Dee

Five years was not too long to wait for such an epic motion picture as "An American Tragedy" which opened to-day at the Dominion Theatre.

Since publication of Theodore Dreiser's epic novel, "An American Tragedy," the screen world has waited for the perfection of the talking picture medium, the only medium in which this tremendously moving drama could properly be presented; waited for the right director to transfer its pulsing drama to the screen; waited for the right players to enact its tense, human characters.

"An American Tragedy" was directed by Josef von Sternberg, famous of the cinema, and is acted by a superb cast headed by Phillips Holmes, Sylvia Sidney and Frances Dee.

Phillips Holmes, in the role of Clyde Griffiths, has the outstanding role of his career. Sylvia Sidney, a remarkable young actress, in the role of Roberta Alden, rockets into first position among screen actors with this one role. And Frances Dee, as Sondra Finchley, springs a new surprise.

The intense story moves with relentless force on the screen. "An American Tragedy," a great book, a great play, has become a greater moving picture.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

The G. Donald Gray stock company, appearing this week at the Playhouse Theatre in Chauncy Olcott's success of former years, "The Isle of Dreams," has lived up to all expectations and is proving most popular with large audiences so far this week. To-morrow afternoon the company will appear in its first matinee, commencing at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon.

Miss Mary Moe, the leading lady has charmed large audiences. Tall and regal, she has the role of the haughty mistress of an old Irish castle in this week's play. With a pleasant speaking voice, Miss Moe is winning many friends by her excellent interpretation of the role of Miss Kathleen O'Doon. Opposite her in the leading male role is Donald Gray, whose robust and pleasing baritone voice is heard to advantage in four popular Irish selections.

Also giving a splendid performance is Miss Kathleen O'Doon, whose role of Mother Kewley, the "mother" of the whole "Isle of Dreams."

TO PRESENT OPERA GEMS

Highlights From "Faust," "Manon" and "Carmen" to Be Heard Here Saturday

handsome young Roumanian tenor of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company, will be heard here on Saturday evening in the Shrine Auditorium. During the two years that he was with the Royal Opera of Bucharest, he was a great favorite with the royal family of Roumania, and was frequently invited to the castle of the king and queen. His activities last season included opera appearances with the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company, the Detroit Civic Opera and the French-Italian Opera Company of Montreal.

The St. Louis Times said of Onofrei on his appearance in St. Louis in Verdi's "Rigoletto": "The brilliant young tenor again revealed his vocal and histrionic powers, and received vociferous applause bordering on an ovation. At the conclusion of his 'Le Donna e Mobile,' the enthusiastic audience would not let the opera proceed until the aria had been repeated."

Onofrei will be assisted in highlights from "Faust," "Manon" and "Carmen" by the beautiful and entrancing Bianca Saroya, also of the Philadelphia Grand Opera Company.

CAPITOL THEATRE

The strange and mysterious story of a man who was murdered twice in a single evening, is told with spine-chilling effectiveness in Paramount's "Murder by the Clock," now showing at the Capitol Theatre. The talkie is based on the mystery novel of the same name by Rufus King. The cast includes William Boyd, Lilyan Tashman, Sally O'Neill, Regis Toomey, Walter McGrail, Irving Pichel and others.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Robert Ames, one of filmdom's outstanding leading men, now appearing in "Madonna of the Streets," the Columbia film featuring Evelyn Brent, now showing at the Columbia Theatre, was formerly just as well known on the stage.

Among the plays in which he appeared are "The Hero," "Icebound," "Nice People" and "Seed of the Brute." He abandoned the stage for the screen in 1928. His rise has been phenomenal.

COLISEUM THEATRE

Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey have not attained their second childhood, although their antics in their latest fun picture, "Cracked Nuts," at the Coliseum Theatre, may suggest such an event.

They seriously engage in a game of toy soldiers, but the reward is the "beautiful kingdom of El Dorado." This hilarious sequence involved the use of 5,000 painted infantrymen, 500 mounted men, 200 tanks, airplanes, machines guns, artillery and other auxiliary military arms.

"Cracked Nuts" was written by the wise-cracking Al Boasberg and Douglas MacLean, long identified in film comedy fields. It was directed by Edward Clive.

COLISEUM

Although "Tabu," the South Sea Islands romance which comes to the Coliseum Theatre on Saturday next, deals with a race of primitive people living in their aboriginal state, there is in the film only one animal to be seen, and that one is a tame pig, the pig of a little native boy.

F. W. Murnau, the director, explained that the island of Bora Bora, where the film was made, abounds in bird life and strange trees, and that the seas around are filled with edible fishes and sharks—but of animals there are none. The pig was imported from Tahiti.

Diet Of Average Child Lacks Adequate Amount Of Calories

Food Deficiencies More Serious In Girls Than Boys

Daily Health Service

Investigators in schools, kindergartens and nurseries have regularly found that children from average homes do not receive proper diets. An investigation made by Dr. J. C. Winners in Texas concerned the diets of fifty Americans; fifty Negro and seventy-five Mexican children in several Texas cities. The diets were carefully studied as to the total amount of calories received, body weight, protein, carbohydrates, fat, mineral salts and vitamins.

Some interesting facts were discovered. For instance, 62 per cent of the American, 62 per cent of the Negro and 66 per cent of the Mexican diets were inadequate in total amount of calories taken. Moreover, the food deficiencies were more serious for girls than for boys.

The Negro and Mexican intake of calcium was not much more than half that of the American diet; phosphorus and iron were low in the three groups. The average intake was lower for girls than for boys. Inadequacy of calcium affected 50 per cent of the American, 90 per cent of the Negro, and 96 per cent of the Mexican dietaries. Inadequacy of phosphorus affected 38 per cent of the American, 74 per cent of the Negro, and 64 per cent of the Mexican. Inadequacy of iron affected 50 per cent of the American, 32 per cent of the Negro and 68 per cent of the American dietaries. People who insist that the average American eats an adequate diet are going to have a hard time explaining these figures.

The inadequacy of minerals in the American diets were largely associated with the failure of diets to provide an adequate amount of calcium. It has long been urged that milk is an essential substance. The average amount of milk taken by the American children was slightly more than 2½ cups per day, while for both the Negro and Mexican groups it was somewhat less than 1½ cups a day.

The Mexican diets failed to provide an adequate amount of green vegetables, whereas the Negro diets were relatively rich in these substances. Vitamin A was supplied in all of the diets, because most of them provided enough milk to take care of this vitamin. The Negro diets contained much less butter, less egg yolk and less leafy vegetables than did the American diets. The Mexicans ate relatively more eggs than the Americans or the Negroes. Fifty per cent of the American children had been given cod liver oil more or less regularly, but the Negro and Mexican children had apparently never received it. Vitamin D was relative deficient in all of the diets. The Mexicans have substituted white flour for whole corn products. Neither Mexicans nor Negroes use whole wheat to any appreciable extent. However, both Mexicans and Negroes use beans, potatoes and tomatoes in fairly large amounts. Fresh fruits and raw vegetables appear much more commonly in American than in Negro or in Mexican diets. The Americans have fair amounts of vitamin C. The Negroes and Mexicans use potatoes, tomatoes and onions, which help to take care of their vitamin C lack. There is apparently less danger of the lack of this vitamin in the diet than of lack of vitamins A and D.

Slot Machines Are Banned In Vancouver

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Sept. 30.—Slot machines have been placed under a ban by the Vancouver city council. Henceforth it will be illegal to operate any mechanical device from which tokens or slugs can be obtained by inserting coins.

On motion of Alderman de Graves, the licensing by-law was amended yesterday to prohibit these machines. Many of them were operated in the city in such a way that goods, candy and merchandise could be obtained by means of tokens, it was stated.

"I have had many complaints from parents of children against allowing these machines near schools," declared Acting Mayor John Bennett.

City Solicitor J. B. Williams said he had heard it stated the by-law amendment would be attacked on grounds of legality.

Swing Into Action on

Introduction of Substitutes
Will Be Big Feature of

Loss of Haines May Prove Serious Blow to Cardinals
Chances

FIRST division football teams will usher in another season on Saturday afternoon when four of the five senior league clubs swing into action. Last year's five teams are entered again and advance hope promises a keen fight for the city championship. All the clubs are confident of coming out on top and with such a spirit prevailing some fine matches are promised the spectators. The big feature of the season will be the introduction of substitutes for the first time. The plan was adopted by the Dominion of Canada Football Association this year in an effort to popularize soccer and received the approval of the British Columbia Football Association and the Victoria and District League. The general opinion among the fans appears divided with many dyed-in-the-wool followers strongly against and most of the younger generation heartily in support of the move.

On Thursday and Friday Victoria will act as host to the cream of British Columbia's professional and amateur golfers, with the holding of the annual provincial open championship at the Uplands Club. The course is in first class condition and with a fine entry list everything points to a first class tournament. Victoria will be represented both in the pro and amateur field and it would not be surprising if the title is brought back to the Capital City after resting in Vancouver for a year on the brow of Dave Black, popular pro of the Shaughnessy Golf Club.

Stephen Barnay, Hungary, convincingly proved the claim of European superiority that he is the greatest sprint swimmer in the amateur field at present, in a recent trial. In a sprint supervised by officials of the Hungarian Federation he sprinted 100 metres free style in 57.5 seconds, in a fifty-metre pool, shading Johnnie Weismuller's long-course world record of 57.4 seconds, and just missing the latter's listed short-course standard of 57.2 set in a twenty-five-metre tank. No other swimmer has nipped 59 seconds since 1928.

Barnay also lowered the Hungarian record for 100 metres backstroke to 1.11, the fastest long-course performance on record this year. The world record is 1.08 1-5, retained by George Kojac, of the New York A.C. Other European swimming stars are also turning in brilliant performances, providing fresh evidence that foreign swimmers and maidens will provide the competition for the American and British swimmers in next year's Olympic Games at Los Angeles.

A recent match in Toledo brought to light a dangerous new bidder for Olympic honors at 200 metres breast stroke. Reizo Kolbe, an eighteen-year-old high school star, won the test in 2.30 from his fellow countryman, Taurita, who gained the Olympic title in 1928 in 2.48 4-5. Of chief interest in women's competition during last summer were backstroke performances accomplished by two British girls in twenty-five-yard pools. Miss Joyce Cooper negotiated 100 metres in 1.21 3-5 and Miss Valerie Davis in 1.23, marks which indicate all three will have to be reckoned with at Los Angeles.

Old Jesse Haines will not be available for pitching duty in the world baseball series and that sounds like a lot of hard luck for the National League champions. In the years of 1926 and 1930, inclusive, the National League teams won seven world series games as against twenty for the New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics, who represented the American circuit. And of those seven wins three were credited to that same Mr. Haines.

They say that Haines does not throw them very fast nor very curvy. In fact, some of his deliveries float up to the plate like a toy balloon, but he beat the Athletics last fall 3 to 1. Then Burleigh Grimes is not the great batter of old. This leaves most of the work to Hallahan, and Derringer. The Cards must be stronger than they were in 1930 to judge by the runaway they made of their pennant chase, but southpaws seem to trouble them. Clark, Brooklyn, and Walker, New York, beat them plenty this season and it seems that the A's have a left-hander named Grove who is said to be quite good.

Canadiens Earn Play-off Berth In Pro Lacrosse

Montreal, Que., Sept. 30.—The last obstacle in the path of Montreal Canadiens to clinch a play-off berth in the International Professional Lacrosse League was cleared yesterday evening when the flying Frenchmen defeated their intra-city rivals, Montreal Maroons, 12 to 2, in the last game of the scheduled season.

Canadiens, now assured second place, will meet the Maple Leafs at Toronto on Friday night in the first of a two-

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—Facing the possibility of a crippled lineup, the Cardinals breezed through their final batting and fielding drill to-day preparatory to opening world series warfare tomorrow against their 1930 conquerors, the champion Athletics. That was the situation as the Athletics sped westward from Philadelphia to defend their title and Gabby Street, manager of the Cardinals, champions of the National League, was giving consideration to a last-minute change in his line-up with a view of replacing Earl "Sparky" Adams at third base, injured his left ankle ten days ago. It still is swollen, painful and bandaged.

CLOSE SERIES PREDICTED BY JOHN HEYDLER

Team Getting the Jump Will Win World Ball Series, Says National League Prexy

St. Louis Will Have to Play Hard-fighting Baseball; Great Leaders Help A's

St. Louis, Sept. 30.—Defensive baseball will not beat the world's champion Athletics in the forthcoming championship conflict, in the opinion of John Arnold Heydler, chief executive of the National League.

"The Cardinals must play aggressive, hard-fighting baseball from the outset, if they expect to stop Connie Mack's team," declared Heydler on his arrival yesterday with an official party to witness the opening of the world series Thursday.

"It is up to our club to force the fight. The Cardinals start the series on their own grounds, with the National League ball. If this is an advantage to them, they should make the most of it."

"I have no prediction to make as to the outcome. The Cards are a good team. They are well rested for the series. They will be handicapped if Haines is unable to pitch, but the club has good reserve strength. I expect it to start the series in an aggressive frame of mind."

"The Cardinals gave a good account of themselves last year," continued Heydler. "Until Fox's home run in the fifth game, it was a toss-up."

JUMP IS IMPORTANT

"The experience, plus the improvement of our championship club, should be manifest in making this a close contest. It will mean much to whichever team gets the jump."

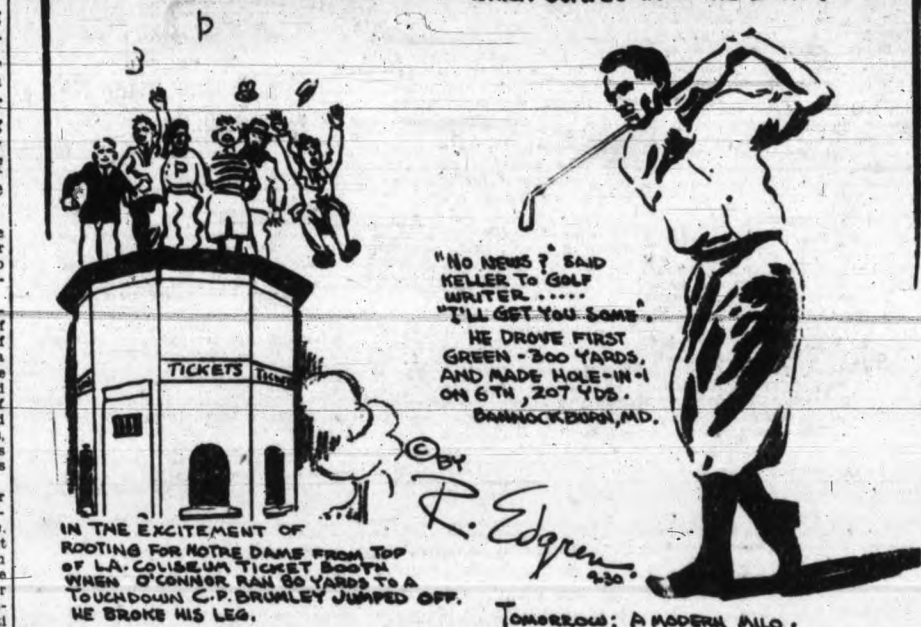

"The Athletics not only have a powerful club, but exceptional advantages in possessing such experienced leaders as Connie Mack, Kid Gleason and Eddie Collins."

"Street, in a short space of time, has achieved fine results. He has a seasoned field leader in Frank Frisch. In the final analysis, however, the result will be determined by the spirit of the players on the field. If the Cards go into the series on their toes, determined to force the opportunity and play real offensive baseball, they have a good chance to win."

Final standing:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Toronto	16	8	.32
Canadiens	15	9	.30
Maroons	13	11	.26
Cornwall	4	20	.16

PLANS FOR NEW ARENA DISCUSSED

Chamber of Commerce and B.C. Agricultural Association Directors Gather

Latter Will Investigate Scheme Fully; Estimated Cost Set at $50,000

Plans for the installation of an ice making plant in the Willows Horse Show Building and conversion of the building into an ice arena for the winter months were further discussed at a joint meeting of the special committee of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce and the directors of the Victoria Agricultural Association at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday evening, Alfred Carmichael, chairman of the chamber group, presided.

After the matter had been thoroughly talked over the directors of the Agricultural Association decided to have a meeting, following which they will report back to the Chamber of Commerce group as to whether or not they are favorable to the proposition.

WILL COST $50,000.

Mr. Carmichael presented to the meeting a statement outlining the cost of the installation of the plant, which would be in the neighborhood of $50,000. The figure the chairman stated was an outside one and might be pared down considerably. The biggest item to be met was the installing of the ice-making plant at a cost of $35,000. The statement further showed that the estimated cost of operating such an arena for five months would be $11,200. The estimated income, based solely on figures supplied by Joseph Patrick, owner of the Willows Arena, which was destroyed by fire two years ago, was put at $19,000, leaving a yearly surplus of $7,800.

Alderman H. O. Litchfield said he fully realized the need for another arena here and was sympathetic towards the plan. However, nothing definite could be accomplished until the Agricultural Association had discussed the proposition. It would be necessary to find out if this body was favorable to the plan, if it would agree to the necessary changes in the building, and if it would give a sub-lease to the building.

The Wednesday Cricket League smoker, scheduled tomorrow evening, has been postponed indefinitely, it was announced by E. C. Payne, president of the league, to-day.

TOLEDO CLUB IN BAD SHAPE

American Association Baseball Team Is Placed in Receivership; Owes $50,000

Toledo, Ohio, Sept. 30.—The Toledo Baseball Club of the American Association was placed in receivership yesterday and plans were made to sell its franchise to pay the debts of itself and affiliated companies.

Bondholders who brought the action, and Al E. Ruben, who was named receiver, said, however, they expect to keep the franchise in Toledo.

The receivership application said the Baseball Company is $50,000 in arrears on rent on its park, and his franchise posted as security.

Company officials said all salaries had been paid within the last sixty days with the exception of $800, and that the receivership was a "friendly" action in which all parties were acting in accord.

The Toledo club has not been a winner since 1927, when it captured the pennant.

Leonard Refused Permit For Bout

New York, Sept. 30.—The New York State Athletic Commission yesterday refused to sanction a bout in Madison Square Garden, on October 16, between Benny Leonard and Paulie Walker, slugging young middleweight from Trenton, N.J. The commission told the retired undefeated lightweight champion he must prove his ability in the smaller clubs before appearing in the garden.

that the proposal would be sanctioned by the Agricultural Association. As soon as the Agricultural Association directors have held their meeting, another joint meeting will be held.

Edith Cross Turns Back Helen Jacobs In Brilliant Style

San Francisco Girl Springs First Major Upset of Pacific Coast Tennis Championships by Eliminating Favorite in Women's Singles, 3-6, 8-6, 6-3; Her First Win Over Berkeley Star in Five Years; All Other Favorites Advance in Easy Fashion

San Francisco, Sept. 30.—In defence of the Pacific Coast tennis singles crown he won a year ago at Berkeley, George Lott of Philadelphia entered the third round to-day matched against George Levy.

The Philadelphian, favored by many to retain his single honors, completed his second-round engagements yesterday after being forced to three sets by Lloyd Budge, Taft, Cal. The score was 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.

Other featured matches in men's singles to-day include those between Lester Stofen, Los Angeles, who eliminated Everett Martes, San Francisco, 6-2, 8-6, and Sidney B. Wood Jr., New York; Gregory Mangin, New York; N. J. and Gordon Jason, and Fred Perry, British Davis Cup star and Laysan, Driscoll.

Mrs. Helen Willis Moody, who is not defending her coast singles crown, will appear in the mixed doubles with George Lott. They meet Patsy McCoy and Neil Brown.

Edith Cross, San Francisco, who disposed of the women's singles favorite, Helen Jacobs, Berkeley, yesterday by scores of 3-6, 8-6, 6-3, will not appear to-day.

Her victory yesterday over Miss Jacobs, generally regarded as the second strongest women's tennis player in the country, was her first in five years of tournament play between the two.

Teeth in national rankings last year, Miss Cross took the measure of her formidable opponent with sharp forehand and backhand drives that had the Berkeley miss running all over the court. Miss Jacobs was the favorite to win the Coast title, which Mrs. Helen Willis Moody decided not to defend this year.

Dorothy Waisel, New York, British singles champion, paired up with Stofen to win a first round doubles tilt from Larry Driscoll and Ray Casey, San Franciscans. The score was 7-5, 6-7, 8-7.

FAVORED PAIRS WIN

The favored combinations came through with flying colors in first round mixed doubles events. Mrs. L. A. Harper, Oakland, first ranking American woman player, and Fred Perry, member of the British Davis Cup team, disposed of Marian and Charles Hunt, sister and brother, San Francisco, 8-6, 7-5.

Dorothy Waisel, Sacramento girl, and Gregory Mangin, Newark, N.J., won from Elsie Gable and Ben Neiden, San Francisco, 6-4, 6-2.

Kan Gladish, Santa Barbara, was hard pressed by George Green, San Francisco, in a second round men's singles match before winning, 9-7, 6-4.

Polo Final Has Been Postponed

New York, Sept. 30.—The final of the Monty Waterbury Memorial cup polo tournament has been postponed from Wednesday until Sunday at the Meadowbrook Club, the United States Polo Association announced yesterday.

An injured knee, twisted in last Sunday's semi-final between Greentree and the Gauchos, is still bothering G. H. (Pete) Boettcher, Greentree's banam-weight No. 2, and he will be unable to play before Sunday.

The final will be between Greentree and Devereaux Milburn's Templars four, which Monday eliminated the last Argentine threat, Lewis Lacey's Hurlingham four.

CHRISTNER IS WINNER

Akron, Sept. 30.—K. O. Christner, Devereaux Milburn's Templars, won a ten-round newspaper decision. Christner proved that the goslings were not wrong in their claim that he is good only for five rounds. But in the case of yesterday evening's bout, those five happened to be the final ones. Brown won the fourth, four were even and Christner was awarded the last five rounds by a clear margin.

Heart of Liane

by MABEL McELLIOTT

Day by day as they traveled the weather grew colder. The southern interlude had been pleasant but Liane knew she was returning to a more critical world. She dreaded taking up the new responsibilities. After all, she was only nineteen and inexperienced.

Some of this dread she imparted to Clive. He laughed at her fears. "We'll get a decorator if you like to do the apartment." But she demurred. "I think I'd like to try my hand at it if you'll help me."

He was delighted. "Don't let mother steer you too much. She'll have us all decked out in Victorian what-nots. She loves 'em."

Liane said, "It isn't that I mind choosing the things for our place. It's meeting people. Taking my place as a hostess."

"Don't worry. You're wonderful. They'll never know if you have a touch of stage fright."

He thought to himself that she was more composed than many a girl of his own world. He said so and she was pleased.

"Do you think so, really?"

"Of course," she leaned over, impulsively squeezed his free hand. The color flooded his face, darkened it under the sunburn.

"Don't do that unless you really mean it," he said.

She withdrew hastily. "I'm sorry," she bit her lip to keep back the tears. She had forgotten. It wasn't fair of him to say that.

That night they reached Washington just after midnight. Liane was enchanted with the city. From the hill above, it looked like a dusting of stars on black velvet.

Travel-tired and weary, they drew up at a hotel of national fame. Clive's casual inquiry at the desk aroused a bored clerk.

"Mr. Cleespaugh? Certainly. We received your wire."

It was thus everywhere they went. Menials springing to attention. Liane was amused and excited by it usually. But to-night she was too tired. Her head ached. Without stopping to remove her little brown hat she slipped down upon the bed, her fur coat dropping from her shoulders.

"Worn out?" She raised a wan face to Clive's.

He was contrite. "My fault. I shouldn't have tried to break the record." He rang for service. A butler came. "Sorry, sir. We're short handed. All the maids have gone."

Clive shut the door on the voluble butler and his ice water. "I'll put you to bed myself," he told Liane.

She tried to spring up, appalled. "You're ill. Don't be a little fool."

At the words she fell back. Tenderly he took her from the room, lifted her hat. He unstrapped her bag, took from it the fragile, scented nightgown.

"Lie still, silly." His tone was stern. Liane might have been a recalcitrant child. Every bone in her body ached. She struggled to rise.

"Really, you needn't bother. I can manage perfectly well myself. There's my head throbbing painfully. There were dark circles beneath her eyes. Clive said, "Don't be a goose. Lie down."

He was unlatching her little brown shoes now. Drowsily she felt herself lifted, felt the softness of her silken gown around her. Dimly she realized he was holding a glass of water to her lips.

"Here, take this." He gave her an aspirin tablet.

She took it meekly. She slept. Clive, sitting in the big chair, kept watch over her for an hour. When he was at last satisfied she was quiet he dragged himself, dog tired, to his own room. But curiously enough he did not sleep. He sat, smoking, brooding, deep into the night. Once he struck the palm of his big hand angrily against the armchair. His look was that of a man faced with a problem which has no solution.

CHAPTER XXXVII

They took a small apartment at the Bleekman since their plans for the future were still indefinite. Liane found herself in the position of many another youthful bride. She had time on her hands and virtually nothing to do. At first it was pure luxury to have her tiny room, with its morning, her bath drawn for her, and the whole long day before her free of engagements.

Clive went to his office early and returned rather late. The man who had been in charge of the estate for years had lately suffered a nervous breakdown. Clive found things at sixes and sevens. He was a man of business at last, much to his mother's satisfaction. But there were no more leisurely drives, no friendly tea parties and shopping expeditions. Clive seemed to Liane older, graver, increasingly silent.

She would dawdle through her mornings. Perhaps she would order the car around and go shopping. Some days she lunched with her mother. Week-ends she and Clive usually spent at Willow Stream. Here a suite was turned over for their use. But mostly Liane was conscious of the extreme loneliness of her existence. She began to feel a certain futility about her days. If they had taken a house and she had been absorbed in the fascinating business of furnishing it she might not have tasted the boredom of the rich woman.

One day Muriel's high, imperative voice reached her over the telephone. "Do come and dine with us some night. We're hutching in one of those rabbit warrens on the East Side. Chuck wants to see you both. How about Thursday?"

Liane said they would be delighted. She was excited at the prospect of seeing Muriel again. She forgot her resentment of the few months before. Muriel seemed more likable since she had married her penniless writing man.

She told Clive about the invitation. He said abstractedly, "I thought you didn't like her."

Liane smiled. "I didn't now and then. She rather snubbed me. But she's fun really. We needn't go if you mind."

"I don't mind. If you'd enjoy seeing them of course we'll go."

She took great pains with her appearance the evening of the dinner party. When Clive came into the living-room of their suite, she stood in the doorway, smiling at him.

"All ready?"

Liane was in white and silver, the silk cunningly cut and contrived to make her slim figure alluring. She wore her pearls. The diamond bracelet glittered at her wrist.

"We're dining at what time?"

"Seven-thirty," Muriel said to be punctual. Her cook is temperamental.

They descended in the elevator. They were still at the Bleekman, having decided not to take an apartment until after their trip to the far east.

"You look charming," Clive's tone was formal. "I like that frock."

"Thank you. I hoped you would."

She turned her eyes to his with innocent coquetry. Hastily he reached for a cigarette.

"What's that perfume you're wearing?"

"Almora. D'you like it?"

"Very much. It's sophisticated for you."

She smiled. "Don't you think I'm sophisticated?"

"Well, I'll learn. Give me time."

She leaned nearer to glance at the sign on the street light. "Oh, I do believe he's taken the wrong street."

Her hair just brushed against his. With one abrupt movement he swept her into his arms. His grasp was hard, compelling.

Liane felt his lips on hers, demanding. She struggled in his clasp.

"You try me too hard, d'you hear?" Those were the words she heard.

As suddenly as he had seized her, he let her go. "I'm sorry. Forgive me. I forgot myself."

She was breathing hard. She put her hand to her lips. "Oh, oh, you hurt me." She was whimpering, like a child who has been frightened.

"I didn't mean to. You're so sweet—so utterly desirable. I went off my head. I tell you I'm sorry."

"Forget it. I won't say I'll not offend again."

His tone was gentle, pleading. She could not bear to have him so. She managed to smile. By the time they reached the apartment building in which the young Desmonds lived, she was quite composed again. Muriel met them in a flurry of silver tissue and a scent of wood smoke. They were ushered into a small room, crowded with rare furniture and good prints. A long table at one corner was brave with lace and what their hostess airily told them were five-cent dishes. Her candlesticks were Georgian silver, her finger bowls were from Woolworth's.

Chuck appeared presently, smiling and at ease in shabby dinner clothes. They all sat down and a clumsy maitre in a dubious apron stumbled in and out with delectable food. Mushroom soup which could not have been better at Delmonico's in the old days. Little birds cooked to the color of strained honey. Peas green as lettuce and salad in a Ming bowl. Ice and coffee strong enough to stand alone.

"You do yourself well, Mrs. Desmond," said Clive in mock amazement. Muriel was casual. "I've learned to cook. Hopsy is teaching me and what she doesn't know I do. Together we manage very well."

It was odd to see the air of matronliness, of satisfaction, she wore. "These things were grandmother's," she said, waving at the chairs, the graceful small tables. "She left them to me and they were all in storage. Mother performed as usual when she heard I was taking them. Tried to stop me."

Chuck watched her as she chattered, his expression a mixture of pride and amusement.

"She's cute, isn't she?" he asked them both.

They agreed with him. Indeed there was a softness, a bloom about this new Muriel. Liane felt old and staid, tired and disillusioned, beside her.

On the way home Clive was stiff, silent. "I can't ask you to forgive me for behaving so badly," he said at length. "It was unpardonable."

Liane did not answer. He saw she was crying.

"Oh, Lord, I am making a mess of it!" he cried. "I was a fool to think we could make this work."

She checked the childish tears. "You weren't and we can make it work." She faced him staunchly.

Back in the apartment Chuck lounged in a big chair. Muriel perched on the arm of it.

"Give me a cigarette, darling." He put one between her scarlet, pouting lips.

"Good party," Chuck reached out to shut off the blues singer moaning through the radio. "What's the matter with those two? Can you figure it out?" His tone was casual but interest flickered in his eyes.

"Dunno," Muriel said, blowing a cloud of smoke. "Guess they had a row before they arrived. They were too darned polite to each other."

He tousled her hair. "Never be like that to me, woman, will you?"

She slipped down into his lap. She raised her mouth for a kiss. "That worry you much?"

"Nuh-uh."

It seemed to satisfy her. "Funny," she murmured after a moment. "Once, but he seemed to lose interest."

Chuck glowered. "Must you drag him in?"

His giggle was infectious. "Going jealous of me?"

"I might if it weren't for my lofty nature." He stood up, dumping her unceremoniously to the floor. "Got to see a man."

She looked at her wrist watch. "Chuck Desmond, if you're going out at 10 o'clock I'm trailing along."

He pretended anger. "It's an assignment, I tell you."

She stuck out her tongue at him. "Try and stop me!" On clicking high heels she vanished into the bedroom, reappearing with a coat on her arm. "No two-timing in this house, baby. I go by-by with you."

He laughed at her. He couldn't help it. "You're my chestnut burr, aren't you?"

"Ummm. Hope so."

Horoscope

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1931

THIS is rather an uncertain day, according to astrology. It is well to take up all important matters early in the morning.

There is a promising sign for writers, editors and publishers through this month which will bring profit to newsmen.

Foreign correspondents and contributors to magazines will benefit under this way which makes for logical weighing of world affairs.

With this configuration prevails it is well to adjust one's financial matters. It should be a favorable day for obtaining loans as well as for paying bills.

Women are subject to a direction of the stars that should incline them to avoid public service of any sort.

There is a sign read as presaging continued criticism of governmental policies in this country as well as Europe.

Leaders in state governmental policies may expect to be subjected to misjudgment and unfair appraisement, and the public mind is likely to believe the worst about the most unselfish in serving the general good.

Jupiter now established in Leo is believed to presage better times in Great Britain and that country's colonies.

Again activity on the stock exchanges of many cities is foretold. Tin, silver, oil and aviation stocks may engage chief interest.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of small vexations and obstacles. Prosperity is indicated, but romance may cause regrets.

Children born on this day probably will be keenly intelligent, but much inclined toward philosophy. The subjecting of this sign often are careless regarding money.

Those who have celebrated this as a birthday include Mrs. Annie Besant, 1847, theosophist; Lord Henry St. John Bolingbroke, 1678, orator, statesman and writer; Giacomo Barozzi da Vignola, 1507, noted Italian architect.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Hunky Bunk

(By HOWARD R. GARIS)

Uncle Wiggily was sitting on a flat stump at the edge of the shady woods, watching the rabbits and other animal children playing. They had all recited their lessons to the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Stump School and, when classes were over, out came the animal boys and girls, some hopping, like the rabbits, some flying, like Charlie and Arabella, the rooster boy and his hen sister. Some of the animal children ran fast, like Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, the dogs.

"My, they certainly are glad to get out of school!" said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh.

"I guess you used to be when you were that age," said Nurse Jane, who was hanging some clothes out on the line. "Weren't you?"

"I suppose so," Uncle Wiggily said. "But I wonder what game they are playing?" he asked the muskrat lady as she watched the animal boys and girls scattering through the woods.

"They are playing a new game called hunky bunk," said Nurse Jane.

"Hunky bunk?" murmured Mr. Longears. "That is a queer name for a game, I think."

"It is a queer game," said Nurse Jane. "It is something like hide and go seek. One of the boys or girls has to look for all the others who hide away in secret places they call hunky bunks."

"I remember now," said Uncle Wiggily. "A hunky bunk is a hiding place."

"And a hunky bunk is one of the best and most secret hiding places," agreed Nurse Jane.

So Uncle Wiggily watched while the animal children hid themselves in many hunky bunks through the woods.

"That game will be a good thing to remember when the Bad Chaps chase me," said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. He hoped away to look for an adventure, leaving the children to play their game. "I must look for a hunky bunk in which to hide."

On and on through the woods hopped the rabbit gentleman. His bright eyes looked this way, that way and the other way, for he very much wanted an adventure so he would have something jolly to tell to his bunny children around the fire when they popped corn in the evening.

But, for some reason or other, just why he cannot tell you, there seemed to be no adventure in the woods just then. Or, if there were any, the adventures were hiding away.

"I think," said Uncle Wiggily with a laugh that made his pink nose twinkle. "I think the adventures must be hiding in hunky bunks."

Speaking of hunky bunks made Mr. Longears think of the game he had seen the children playing after school, and the rabbit gentleman said:

"This would be a good time for me to look for a hunky bunk. I'll do it."

So instead of looking for an adventure, Mr. Longears began to look for a hunky bunk. And, as often happens, when you don't look for a thing you find it. So with Uncle Wiggily, he found an adventure and a hunky bunk at the same time.

All of a sudden there was a rustling in the bushes. A quick, light, the rabbit gentleman could hop away out popped a big bear. But Uncle Wiggily wasn't in the least afraid, for he at once saw that the bear was kind Mr. Stubbail, the father of Neddie and Beekie, the bear children.

"What are you doing out here in the woods, Uncle Wiggily?" asked Mr. Stubbail, the bear gentleman.

"I'm looking for a hunky bunk—that is a hiding place," said the rabbit.

"Hut! I know where there is a dandy one for you," said the bear. "See here!" With his long claws he raised up a flat stone. Beneath the stone was a hole, lined with soft leaves, and just the right size for Mr. Longears. "There's your hunky bunk," said the bear.

"A fine one it is, and you found it for me just in time," said the rabbit gentleman.

"What do you mean, just in time?" asked the bear.

"I see the Bob Cat coming," whispered the rabbit. "Quick! Lift up the stone and let me get into the hunky bunk. Then he can't nibble me."

No sooner said than done. Again Mr. Stubbail raised the stone. Into the hunky bunk hole popped the rabbit. The bear put the stone over the hole and sat down on it. Along came the Bob Cat.

"Dear me!" mewed the Bob Cat, looking at his silly little tail with one eye. "I'm so disappointed. I thought I'd catch Uncle Wiggily, but he doesn't seem to be here."

"No, he doesn't seem to be here!" chuckled Mr. Stubbail.

Then the disappointed Bob Cat ran away with his silly tail. The Bear raised the stone and Uncle Wiggily came out of his hunky bunk safe and sound and he wasn't nibbled at all. He thanked Mr. Stubbail kindly.

Then Mr. Longears ran to his hollow stump bungalow; and if the stick of chalk will stop making marks on the blackboard I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Big Eyes.

RETURNED TO REFORMATORY

Vancouver, Sept. 30.—After little more than twenty-four hours of freedom, the three seventeen-year-old juveniles who escaped from the Juvenile Detention Home at Clinton and Wall Streets here, after slugging two guards, were recaptured by city detectives yesterday evening. They were caught sleeping in a small tug tied up at McVie's wharf on False Creek, a few minutes before 10 p.m., by Detectives Grant Thompson and C. W. Macdonald, who, with other detectives, been attempting to trace them as they broke from the home at Monday evening.

Hears Revolt Against Tyranny
of YouthMr
And Mrs—

IN THESE modern times we have flaming youth that resents all efforts of its elders to control it. We also have flaming age that cries out against youth trying to put it on the shelf.

The other day an elderly lady was complaining to me of her lack of personal freedom.

"I am," she said whimsically, "the victim of devoted daughters who chicken-peck me so that even my soul is not my own. Of course, they do it through love and a high sense of filial duty and I am properly appreciative of the noble motives that inspire their tyranny. But there are times when I could do with less affection and more liberty and when I envy the mothers who have neglectful children."

"It would horrify my daughters to know that I entertain such heretical sentiments. For they are filled with self-righteousness over the way they take care of me and about the sacrifices they make for me and about how they have relieved me of all care and responsibility and labor. They never dream that the very things they pat themselves on the back for doing for me are the things that I don't want done."

"I don't want to be kept in cotton wool. I want to be still out in the thick of life. I don't want to be laid on the shelf. I don't want to be made to feel that I am a has-been. I don't want to sit with idle, useless hands."

"I want to be busy, interested, employed. Above all, I don't want anybody to be martyred for my sake. I would rather die a thousand times than to feel that I was the slightest burden on my children or that I interfered with their pleasure. I want my children to feel that I am something beautiful and benign in their lives, not an Old Woman of the Sea on their backs."

"It is funny—and pathetic—that our children never understand us parents. They never realize that we are human beings, even as they are, with the same natural human desires and likes and dislikes. They think of us as being different, somehow, from them and as not wanting to do things or things. Especially when we grow old they picture us as turning into water saints, content to sit where we are put and brood over our latter end."

"Which isn't the way of many of us oldsters nowadays. We are still full of pep and go and interested in carnal things and we are filled with rebellion against our devoted children who deprive us of our right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness in our own way."

"Now my good daughters long ago deprived me of my home. They said it was too old to be bothered with keeping a house and having to worry over servants, so nothing would do but that I must sell my house and my furniture, every piece of which was enriched with a sacred memory, and go and live with them."

"As I said, they are good daughters and my sons-in-law are splendid men. They always make me feel that I am a welcome guest and I have the seat of honor at their tables and at their firesides. But it makes me nothing but a tramping, wandering from house to house, with no fixed abiding place. I have lost all sense of dignity. I feel myself sort of gilded parasite and I get worn out trying to remember that I am living in my in-laws' houses and that I mustn't interfere or advise or make myself offensive in any way."

"Now, why couldn't my daughters see that no woman who has kept house forty years and been the head of her own establishment and had her way of doing things, could ever be happy living in some other woman's house, even if it was her own child's? Why couldn't they see that the woman who has always been busy is bound to be bored to death if she is idle? Why couldn't they see that an old woman is happier among her old things with her old friends than she is anywhere else and that you can no more transplant her than you can an old tree?"

"Our dear daughters won't let us live in our old houses because they are afraid we will work too hard and be lonely and they never realize that there is no work so hard as killing time and no loneliness so great as the loneliness of being in a crowd in which you are an alien—a crowd in which no one has any particular interest in you and you are only tolerated for your children's sake and because they must be polite to their mother's mother."

"People are always telling me how fortunate I am to have daughters take such good care of me. They do. They take such good care of that I am bossed out of my life."

"They supervise all of my uprisings and downings. It's 'Mother, don't read that light. It's bad for your eyes.' It's 'Mother, don't sit that draft.' It's 'Mother, don't drink your coffee so strong' or 'Don't mince pie for dinner' or 'Don't do this and don't do that.' You would think I was an imbecile who hadn't enough sense to come in out of the in, yet I have always been accounted an intelligent woman and was even reproached with being strong-minded when brains were a scandal a female."

"Why, I am never even allowed out without a keeper! It has been years I have been downtown alone and spent an afternoon just exactly as I pleased. One of my daughters always insists on accompanying me and decides where we shall go and what we shall do."

"And when I have new clothes my daughters always pick them out. It doesn't occur to them that my taste is not their taste and that as I am the one who is going to pay for them and wear them, I have a right to my own selection and to get what I want. As a matter of fact, I am much younger in spirit than my daughters and I would adore to dress in that hat that looked like the way I feel inside of me. But I shall never do that, for Mary and Eliza will continue to buy for me the garments that represent the aged person they think I am."

"And so it goes. And while I appreciate the devotion of my children, there are times when I am awfully fed up on it, and when I wish I could away from them and have a little freedom. For being chicken-pecked is a painful ordeal."

Tales Told by Tree Rings

Young trees or "saplings" sometimes have trunks less than an inch thick. Such as the redwood or the sequoia, may have trunks more than fifty feet in diameter.

Up view of pine tree section. Lines show "rings."

When cold weather comes on, trees grow rapidly. During the winter months, the growth just about comes to a standstill. Under the bark, trees make up another ring this winter.

In spring, new wood will start growing beneath the bark of the trunk, and in winter following, another ring is added.

Scientists have used tree trunks to store other records. Scientists are able to learn many things besides the age of trees. They can learn whether a year had summer season which was dry or wet, hot or cold. The growth of trees sometimes make it possible to tell in what years pests have visited the trees. A scientist in Europe has studied oak trees to learn when beetles known as "cuckoo" destroyed leaves. His report goes back more than 130 years.

Other scientists have studied the rings of pine and spruce trees to learn in what years they were injured by nun-moth caterpillars.

Insect pests, cold summers, and very dry summers tend to make trunk growth small, resulting in narrow rings.

Dr. Andrew E. Douglas, who teaches at the University of Arizona, has made what we may call "a three-ring almanac" which goes back 1,200 years. Dr. Douglas says that he has studied more than 500,000 tree-rings. By comparing log sections with one another, he has been able to prove that rings obey laws of growth.

For example, pine trees which grew close together between 1890 and 1900 would have rings which would be almost exactly alike—let us say all would be narrow for 1890, all thick for 1891, medium for 1892, thick for 1893, and so on.

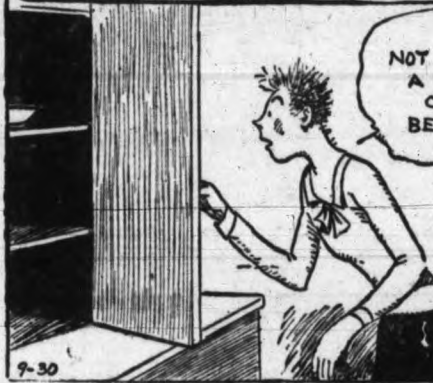

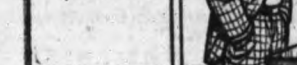

Dr. Douglas has studied logs used by Pueblo Indians and by Cliff-Dwellers who built homes in Arizona. By comparing the rings of these logs with cross-sections of trees whose age he knows, he believes he has learned when the homes were built. He says that one home in a Pueblo village was built in the year 919, and that a cliff dwelling in Arizona was put up in 1098.
